"You take arithmetic . . . I like this lesson better . . ." and who could argue with the 160 grade five pupils who happily splashed around Crystal Garden pool this morning. They are vanguard of 1,000 from Greater Victoria schools in opening of annual swim program. Part of regular physical education program, lessons are given in school hours. They include water safety education. George Grant, supervisor of physical education is in charge. Other swim instructors are Mrs. A. F. Garnot, Fred Ellison and Ed Kelter. (Times photo by Halkett.)

Minister Still Hopeful Meat Embargo May Ease

When was Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman not Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman? "Thursday night, that's for sure," replies British Columbia's hard-working agriculture minister, emphatically. "Confusion reigned in B.C.'s newspapers and radio stations when a report circulated that Bowman had announced the province's meat embargo would be lifted not be lifted this week. This appeared to be contradicting what Bowman told the Legislature earlier this week. So nearly everybody in the news-gathering business started to check the story.

CHECK ON B.C.-ALBERTA BORDER FOR LIVESTOCK

CROWS NEST, B.C., March 14 (CP).—Cars crossing the Alberta-British Columbia border are being stopped by a three-man British Columbia patrol at the Corbin Road cutoff, six miles east of Michel, B.C. The patrol is maintained around the clock.

It was set up as a result of the interprovincial ban on shipments of livestock and fresh meat following the Regina outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease. Cars bound for B.C. are examined for meat. Whenever it is found they are ordered to return to Alberta. Cooked or canned meats may be taken in, but no hams or bacon.

'Dismal New Low' Hits Korean Peace Conference

PANMUNJOM, Korea, March 13 (UP).—Armistice talks between United Nations and Communist negotiators hit a "dismal new low" today.

"We touched, I think, a dizzy new height in Communist intransigence and ill-judgment and a dismal new low in progress," U.N. Col. Andrew J. Kinney reported after a fruitless meeting of more than four hours on means of supervising a truce.

There was no progress in a 23-minute debate on exchanging prisoners of war.

Rear Admiral Ruthven E. Libby asked the Reds to clarify their previous proposal to continue discussions on exchanging prisoners on the basis of lists already drawn up. The Allies have claimed the Communists' list is incomplete.

After a 15-second silence, Korean Major-Gen. Lee Sang Cho asked if Libby had anything to say. Libby again requested clarification. When it was not forthcoming, Libby said:

"It is apparent that we have reached a situation in the sub-delegation meetings where progress will at best be extremely slow . . . if such is the case, further clarification and exploration is essential to progress."

Libby then suggested that the staff officers for each side again take over the prisoner discussions "with a view to seeking and recommending to us means by which progress can be made toward a solution."

Lee said he will consider Libby's suggestion. The prisoner of war debate is snagged on the Communists' demand for forcible repatriation of prisoners held by the Allies.

ROYAL BIRTHDAY CELEBRATIONS SET JUNE 9

OTTAWA, March 14 (BUP).—Canada will celebrate the Queen's birthday on Monday, June 9. It will be a national holiday.

Secretary of State Gordon Bradley made this announcement today. Queen Elizabeth has given special permission to celebrate her birthday on that date.

Canada traditionally celebrates the birthday of its sovereign on the first Monday in June.

One Vancouver newspaper carried an eight-column headline on the story, and a picture of the real agriculture minister with the caption, "Leaves Town."

This morning Minister Bowman said: "I insist I'm in Victoria. I should know where I am."

To make matters worse, Bowman was at home ill while the confusion reigned, and his phone rang continuously as the press tried to straighten out the tangle.

The real story about the meat embargo situation? Bowman said it is unchanged. He is waiting to hear from Ottawa on arrangements being made for inspection services. He may hear tonight, he said, and there is a chance the embargo may be eased this week-end.

Meanwhile, Dr. Wallace Gunn, livestock commissioner, has gone to Edmonton to study the situation there.

ARENA PATRONS TO GET DRY ROOF OVER HEADS

Victoria's Memorial Arena is going to be waterproofed. Satisfied that the roof needs to be permanently plugged the arena commission has authorized the calling of tenders for repairs which will guarantee a leak-proof shelter for the crowds that storm into the city's favorite entertainment palace. Preliminary repairs were previously undertaken, but now it is going to be a real job.

Tenders are being invited by Architect Henry Whittaker, Pacific Building, for the re-roofing of the entire barrel section as well as the flat areas.

The bids received will then be checked by the firm of Swan, Rhodes and Wooster, consulting engineers, Vancouver, followed by award of the contract.

SHARP EARTHQUAKE ROUSES VICTORIA

Early Morning Tremor, Worst of Year, Causes Little Damage in City

A sudden, sharp earthquake, most severe of the year, shook the city and district at 7 a.m. today and drove countless Victorians from their beds.

The natural "alarm clock" occurred just 24 seconds before 7 o'clock, according to the Dominion Astro-Physical Observatory seismologist.

Its epicentre was about 20 miles from the observatory and due east of Sidney, in the U.S.-Canadian border waters of Georgia Straits.

Apparently no damage was done and intensity was 4, below the level at which destruction occurs, but a certain amount of mental anguish was reported from sleep-fogged citizens.

Here are some of the reactions: City Centre: "It woke me up by shaking my bed, and it took me a few seconds to realize what had happened. When there were no more shocks I went back to sleep."

Fairfield: "When a goose-neck lamp on my dresser started to wriggle I was a little worried, and actually relieved when I heard a rumble and knew it was an earthquake."

Esquimalt: "My bed shook and the alarm clock rang all at once. It's the first quake I've ever felt, and I was too surprised to be frightened."

View Royal: "It sounded like a freight train going by my front door."

Oak Bay: "When all the furniture in my kitchen leaped around I was sure my old house was falling down."

Mount Douglas: "The power lines outside my house danced a jig."

James Bay: "The whole house shuddered, and so did I!"

Cordova Bay: "My little daughter had eyes like saucers."

Metichon: "I missed all the others and was glad I finally felt one."

A series of tremors, of about the same intensity, shook the city on February 20, 21, and 22. All originated in the same place as the one today, and were only slightly less intense.

Observatory officials estimated the intensity of today's jolt as higher than those in February because it was felt over a much wider area. Those previously were felt only within a 30-mile radius of the centre.

American Delegate Refutes Malik Charge

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 14 (AP).—Soviet delegate Jakob Malik today accused the United States of using bacteriological weapons in Korea and China and called on the U.N. disarmament commission to consider immediately measures to prevent future use of germ warfare.

Benjamin V. Cohen, United States delegate, immediately called the charges "unwarranted and unsubstantiated."

ASKS IMPARTIAL PROBE. Cohen said the United States has asked the International Red Cross to investigate these charges and urged Malik to use his influence to see that an impartial investigation is made.

Malik made his charges at the first meeting of the new U.N. disarmament commission here and split sharply from a plan of work proposed by Cohen.

"The whole world is indignant at the United States use of bacteriological warfare in Korea and China," Malik said near the end of the commission meeting. "The disarmament commission cannot pass over or ignore such facts as the use by American troops in Korea and China of bacteriological weapons designed to produce mass destruction."

Malik said the commission should immediately consider the prohibition of this sort of warfare and measures to prevent its future use.

Malik's charges on bacteriological warfare followed by several days charges from Communist Chinese and North Korean sources that the United States is using germ warfare in Korea.

ARMED REDUCTION. Cohen also called on the commission to suggest immediately a substantial reduction in the armed forces of the big powers and a ban on atomic weapons.

The United States and Russia split sharply on how to tackle the commission's assignment of making disarmament plans.

Cohen submitted a plan of work for arms control by stages. Malik demanded immediate decisions.

The Soviet delegate said the United States, Britain and France and their allies, "including Yugoslavia and Spain," have far more armed forces at hand than the Soviet Union.

The commission decided to meet again next Wednesday.

CANADIAN DELEGATE. Canada is represented by her permanent representative to the U.N., David Johnson, former high commissioner to Pakistan. Canada is a permanent member of the commission, along with the five big powers, because of her contributions to the development of atomic energy.

Putting up a five-point plan of work, Cohen told the commission that "there is room for all constructive ideas . . . the people of the world are not interested in propaganda tricks or politics. They expect from us a workable plan for a new house of peace and security."

Cohen said the commission must make its first report to the U.N. by June 1. He suggested the delegates concentrate on the first step in the plan, providing for a world census of armaments and armed forces. The Russians have turned down such an idea.

THE REDS' ACCUSATIONS have drawn repeated denials from such leading western spokesmen as State Secretary Dean Acheson of the U.S. and from Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Dr. Lyle Gunn, secretary of the college, has denied charges made Tuesday in the provincial Legislature that Dr. Norvell, a graduate of the University of Illinois, was denied a license because he was a pacifist or there were "too many doctors" in B.C.

Dr. Norvell has been practising in the Arrow Lakes district of the interior of the province for nearly a year on a temporary license.

Is Your Hubby Tubby?

Is your hubby tubby? Is there too much of him to love? If so what can you do about it?

Josephine Lowman, the Times feature writer on diet and living, says she can take 7 to 12 pounds off him in 12 days—and he won't go hungry.

She'll start next Monday giving a daily balanced diet for tubby hubbies. What's more, she says to wives, you don't even have to tell hubby he's on a diet. Just feed him the right menu and bring him down to size.

Josephine recently finished her eight-week marathon for beautifying wives, now she's going to work on the hubbies.

Each day starting Monday she'll publish the menus for one day. Those who would like to get the full 12-day diet in a booklet may do so by enclosing 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope addressed to Josephine Lowman, c/o the Times.

Jews, Italians, Russians, Best Carriers of Alcohol

LONDON, March 14 (UP).—A British researcher announced today Russians, Italians and Jews carry their liquor better than anybody else in the world, and the people who carry it worst are Americans, Swedes, Irishmen, Norwegians and Finns.

The findings were reported in the Lancet, a British medical magazine, by H. Pullar Strecker, superintendent of a mental hospital at Isleworth.

"Not only individuals but whole nations or races have better heads for alcohol than others," he said. "At the top of the scale come the Irish . . . at the bottom comes the Jewish race, in which alcoholism is remarkably low.

"Next to the Jewish race come the Italians, who, despite a high national consumption of alcohol, have a low alcoholism rate."

Right next to the Italians he rated the Russians.

Strecker based his article on figures he said he obtained from the United States, showing the rate of pathological alcoholism among people of foreign extraction.

He placed Frenchmen and Englishmen in a middle group of people who have "a normal head for alcohol."

TAKE A TIP

Even with perfect brakes, it takes over 100 feet to stop a car going 30 miles an hour, according to the Victoria Automobile Club. With bad brakes, it takes even more. Remember, you can't stop on a dime!

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Out at our place we have a dozen ways of disguising hamburger. Sometimes we call it ground round steak. Sometimes it's mock porcupine. Sometimes it's mock buffalo. And sometimes it's just mock.

But since it reached its present price, we've been content to call it hamburger. Hamburger's pretty aristocratic these days. There's no need to apologize for it. Back in Nero's time, according to the way we heard it, the wealthy Romans used to eat farks' tongues. We'll take our pound of ground round steak—and sing just as well, too.

Stott

When you notice that beef is bouncing up another 10 cents this week-end, you'll understand our hamburger standard. That's part of stretching the food dollar. The boss of our house can stretch the food dollar so far it looks as long as a slightly soiled St. Patrick's Day tie.

"It's the penny savings that mount up," says the boss of our house. "Keep watching the bargains and you'd be surprised what you can do."

Then she'll go into an explanation of the family budget in a way that would make Doug Abbott's ears bend forward. What she says makes sense—not because she's an expert on the penny savings, but because she's dealing in amounts that run up to 10 or 20 dollars. That kind of money, almost anybody can understand.

When you move into the provincial, national and international field, the financiers aren't talking money at all. They're just talking figures. A guy may have a nice eye for figures, but when the millions and billions start bouncing around me, I just close my eyes and laugh in a falsetto. And I'm not alone, either.

Buddy, Can You Spare a Billion?

On Tuesday, when the report came out on the British budget, one paragraph dealt with an intriguing statement attributed to Richard Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

According to the news report, "the estimated revenue at £4,778,000 (watch that figure), leaving a record treasury surplus of £538,000,000 despite spending of £43,000,000 more than last year."

As the paper had it, Mr. Butler had more left, after spending more than last year, than he collected in the first place. That's the smartest trick since the five loaves and two fishes—if the statement didn't include a stenographic or typographical error.

Maybe Mr. Butler collected four billion plus, not four million plus. It isn't too unusual that an error like that should appear in print. What is a little more interesting to non-arithmetic guys like me is that nobody seemed to care about the difference in figures. Maybe other folk noted the apparent mistake, dismissed it with the obvious explanation, and made their own computations. Maybe they did that—but I'll bet three Hopalong Cassidy pennies—which is real money to me—that most people didn't even notice the error. After all, what was it? Somebody just dropped three noughts. That's nothing—three times. And what's three times nothing?

Worth Looking Into

On the other hand, if the figures weren't incorrect, if Mr. Butler has a new device, it's a dandy. It's the kind every government needs and the kind voters think governments have. The taxpayer turns in a dollar and expects 1,000 dollars back. If Mr. Butler can gratify that whim, he's going to be Chancellor of the Exchequer for a long, long time.

Among other things, he's solved the little problem I encountered when Spencer's (remember?) gave me a credit card. Spencer's didn't think a dollar stretched quite as far as I did. Somebody in the store started to send me a little note that eventually weren't so tactful. So I turned my credit card in. A guy doesn't have to put up with that kind of treatment.

Anyhow, I'm going to study that Butler formula a little more closely. It'll come in handy when I get around to making out my income tax. I'll just take an arbitrary figure and ask for a refund of that amount, justifying it with a penciled note, "See Butler technique."

If that works, I'll take the matter up with the boss of our house and teach her a thing or two about home budgeting and how unnecessary it is to string along on the hamburger diet. Not that I mind hamburger at all—no, no. It's marvelous if it's cooked properly.

Dramatic Broadcasts Fail to Get Suspected Toronto Bank Thief to Surrender to Police

MONTREAL, March 14 (CP)—Edwin Alonzo Boyd, the third man of a trio sought by police for the armed robbery of a Toronto bank, was still in hiding today despite two dramatic radio appeals Thursday night asking him to surrender.

Ann Roberts Jackson, wife of Leonard Jackson, cut down by police bullets and captured Tuesday night, and Police Director J. Albert Langlois, both told Boyd to give himself up.

Boyd is believed by police to be the ringleader of the trio. Police want the three in connection with a recent $24,000 armed robbery of a Toronto bank.

Mowat Urges Higher Wages For Experts

Wages of professional personnel in provincial government branches should be raised nearer the scale set by industry, James Mowat (Gov't. Albert), said in the Legislature Thursday.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mowat said failure to pay these people higher salaries will result in the loss to the government of many valuable officials.

"They don't want to leave the civil service, but the high cost of living may force them out," said Mowat.

Mowat said he favored damming Butte Lake for water storage purposes so much-needed power can be made available for the Island's development. He said damming of the lake would not detract from its beauty.

Establishment of a "loop road system" on Vancouver Island by connecting up existing logging roads was urged by Mowat. He said the plan could work in with the civil defense program.

He also suggested connecting of the Sprout Lake Road with the Long Beach-Tofino Road.

Mowat was disappointed because co-insurance will not be abolished at the present session.

Mowat

Jackson, the other two members of the trio, are both in separate hospitals here, recovering from wounds after gun battles with police, in which they were captured. Suchan was taken following a police ambush in his plush Cote Des Neiges apartment last Friday, and Jackson was overcome by bullets and tear gas in a dingy basement apartment just five blocks from Suchan's hideout. Both are reported in "fair" condition.

Suchan and Jackson were sought by police in the attempted murders of two Toronto detectives, Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong and Det.-Sgt. Roy Perry.

The appeals came after police spent the whole day and night tracking down rumors from citizenry who thought they saw the much-sought Boyd in one place or another.

Jackson's wife, who surrendered with him, sobbed throughout her message to Boyd.

"I don't want any more bloodshed," she said. "There may even be death this time."

Then, choking back sobs, she went on:

"The other two—both of them are, oh so badly shot up. I just wouldn't want any more of that. Go to any police station and give yourself up."

Then, after a long pause, she said slowly:

"I've been treated well. These men (police) have been good to me. I'll be without Leonard for a long time. (Here she cried openly.)"

"Don't make it any worse for you and yours."

In his appeal, Director Langlois told Boyd to "surrender now!"

"This is a life-or-death message directed to Edwin Alonzo Boyd," said the director, who left a sick bed to make his appeal.

Director Langlois said that 2,000 men, all heavily-armed, are determined to bring Boyd to bay and let it be known there will be no quarter if he resists.

DEFENSE TAX FREE

CHICAGO (UP)—Bomb shelter costs can be deducted from taxes as current business expenses, according to the Commerce Clearing House. The clearing house said the Bureau of Internal Revenue must be convinced, however, that the shelter would be worthless for any other purpose.

Murdoch Asks Half Hour to Kill Poll Tax

Ald. Brent Murdoch wants to talk "poll tax" to City Council's executive committee for just "one-half hour."

"If I can't convince them of need for a study of revision or abolition of the tax in that time, I won't bring it up again this year—this year, that is," he told City Council Thursday.

Council agreed and the matter be referred back to the executive which, at its last meeting, recommended the matter be not opened this year.

"The poll tax is far more iniquitous than the business tax," Murdoch said.

Revenue from it, he said, was $22,000.

Taxi Driver Pleads Against Suspension

Taxi driver John A. McKenzie, 34 Robert, was fined $35 in Saanich police court Thursday after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Magistrate H. C. Hall took under consideration McKenzie's request that his license not be suspended and will give his decision today on the matter.

THEFT OF ELECTRIC POWER BRINGS FINE AND WARNING

NANAIMO, March 14.—Henry Greenless, Nanaimo Bay, pleaded guilty in police court Thursday to a charge of stealing electricity, and was fined $45 and $5.50 costs by Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts.

According to evidence, Greenless had had his power cut off for non-payment of his bill. After the meter was removed, he hooked on to wires leading to his house and connected them to his main switch.

B.C. Power Commission laid the charge. A commission spokesman said today charges will be laid where it can be proved that electricity has been stolen, an offense known as "diversion of energy."

"From now on we're cracking down on anyone caught diverting energy," he said. "He was endangering himself by his action, which could have resulted in a serious accident."

STRUNG — In Nelson, B.C., first of three power conductors which will form the world's longest overhead span was strung across Kootenay Lake Thursday. The 10,636-foot span links the east and west shores of the lake in the 87-mile transmission line between south Slokan and Kimberley.

The $3,000,000 line will furnish power for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. mining and milling operations at Kimberley and branch lines will take power to the company's Bluebell mine at Riondel, on Kootenay Lake, and Creston, rich agricultural centre 80 miles east of Nelson. It will also serve the new $9,000,000 fertilizer plant being erected near Kimberley.

QUIETER — The Korean war was quieter today after the heaviest Communist artillery operations in weeks, including shell bursts uncomfortably close to four United States warships. Even the air war was washed out by storm clouds.

Communist shore batteries opened up twice Thursday on U.S. warships besieging the east coast port of Wonsan. But the navy said none of the U.S. craft was damaged.

Shells from coastal guns straddled the cruiser Manchester and destroyer Fox. Sea-air attack silenced the Communist emplacement.

HANGED — In Montreal, two brothers, convicted of murdering a Three Rivers, Que., district taxi driver, were hanged in Montreal jail early today.

The trap was sprung at 12:30 a.m. and a doctor declared them dead several minutes later. Gaston Gervais, 32, and Marcel, 26, showed no emotion as they mounted the gallows. They were convicted of killing Maxine Gelin, a semi-invalid from the village of St. Etienne Des Gres. He disappeared from his home Oct. 10 and his beaten body was found later.

ENRICHED — In Ottawa petroleum and natural gas prospecting rights on four Indian reserves in northern Alberta and on four parcels of land in the Peigan Reserve near Lethbridge, have been awarded for a year to bidders from Calgary, Winnipeg, Hamilton and Detroit.

The Indian Affairs branch announced today that land funds of the 600-member Peigan Indian band were enriched by $12,452 as four parcels of land totalling 37,756 acres were sold.

Russia Expected to Reject New Austrian Peace Treaty

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP) — Russia is believed ready to fire back a quick emphatic "no" to a new Big Three proposal for a streamlined Austrian peace treaty.

Officials say the Russian turn-down, if and when it comes, will virtually kill the last western hope that a four-power peace treaty for Austria is possible and will mean continued Russian and western occupation of Austria until some other way is found to break the present stalemate.

In formal notes made public Thursday, Britain, United States and France appealed to Moscow to agree to a 1,000-word, eight-article pact which would fully restore Austrian rule over its territory.

At the same time, the U.S. denounced Russia for stalling on a peace pact and failing to keep a 1943 promise to "join the west in insuring Austrian independence after the war.

The new draft treaty was designed to replace a much longer, 60-article pact that bogged down in argument after five years of talk.

U.S. EMBARGO TO RESULT IN MILK BACK-UP

500,000,000 Pounds
On Canadian Market

New disruption of Canada's agriculture loomed with the announcement Thursday that 500,000,000 pounds of milk will be thrown on the Canadian market partly as a result of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan.

The National Dairy Council estimated that much milk would be "back up" because of the United States embargo on imports of livestock and dairy products. The livestock ban was put on as a protection against spread of foot-and-mouth disease. Imports of dairy products are restricted under U.S. defense production regulations.

The council said a contributing factor in the back-up would be the dairy cattle which normally would be sold in the U.S. They would remain in Canada and be milked.

Meanwhile, in Saskatchewan the last of the herds known to be infected with foot-and-mouth disease were slaughtered.

That left the long job, expected to take months, of ensuring that farms in the contaminated area were free of every trace of the virus of the disease.

NEED MORE VETS
Federal agricultural officials called for more veterinarians to help them in the task of cleaning out the farms. A squad of 43 are at work and 10 more will join them.

The final slaughter of 39 cattle and some associated farm stock took place on the farm of Leonard Wass of McLean, 30 miles from Regina. The Wass farm was where the disease first was suspected and his cattle were held until the final killings for special tests.

Meanwhile, the various international and interprovincial embargoes against livestock movement remained. British Columbia retained its ban on western movement of livestock and meat.

Manitoba still bans movement of livestock through that province except in sealed cars. Quebec has a permit system which keeps out meat and livestock until inspected by the provincial veterinarians.

However, in Ottawa there was indication that Canada may lift her ban on immigrants from countries known to have foot-and-mouth disease.

Still Fights Butter Men's Coloring War

Margarine manufacturers should not be permitted to color their product the same "golden yellow" of butter, R. C. Steele (Govt. Omineca) told the Legislature Thursday.

"The farmers of my district feel colored margarine should be colored any color but the golden yellow of butter," said Steele. The Omineca member was one of the six in the House who voted against colored margarine.

Steele urged extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway into the Peace River country as soon as possible.

"The P.G.E. must be continued into the Peace River before it can be completely successful," said the Omineca member.

Steele urged additional rural electrification in his riding, and suggested establishment of a provincial building and government agency at Vanderhoof.

Harrison Under Fire Over Mayor's Fund Claims

Incensed aldermen have branded as attacks upon their honor and integrity remarks of Mayor C. L. Harrison with respect to illegal spending of the "Mayor's Fund."

A storm of protest broke around the head of the mayor in city council today; a storm built up and directed by Aldermen Percy Scurrah, Frank Mulliner and Arthur Dowell.

All three considered the reported comments an attack on the integrity and honor of the aldermen of this and previous councils.

All made special reference to the annual special mayor's dinner given in honor of aldermen and their wives and senior civic officials.

In rebuttal the mayor cited a lengthy case in the B.C. Law reports to substantiate his stand and emphasized the need for councils to do things legally and within the bounds of the Municipal Act.

"My remarks have been for your own protection," he said. Scurrah quoted Mayor Harrison as reported in the press on Feb. 28: "On the question of club dues and misuse of mayor's fund, it was a case of wrongfully using funds; it was not done correctly, thus perpetuating a bad habit. The mayor's fund at $1,500 a year was not to be used for entertaining aldermen and their wives, but for the purpose of entertaining distinguished visitors."

The aldermen presented statements in which they suggested the mayor's alleged remarks "did not make for harmony or good feeling among the aldermen."

Alderman Scurrah said: "It looks as if you are sniping at your aldermen."

"So far as I, and my wife, are concerned, neither of us, with the exception of one dinner given by the mayor, have participated in

"stigma" placed on aldermen and the impression given the public that they knowingly condoned an illegal act by accepting the former mayor's invitation to dinner.

"I think you will find most business firms spend considerable sums on goodwill entertainment of visitors and their staffs, and I think it is good business and creates good public relations which is just as essential in civic government as in private business," said Dowell.

The mayor stated he was not sniping at anyone, neither members of the present nor former council.

He said at no time did he consider anyone doing anything improper.

"I find your secretary made a requisition Feb. 19, 1952, for $48 for candy and cigarettes," said Scurrah.

The mayor replied that since he had learned of the requisition it had been stopped by letter to the comptroller.

PERSONAL ATTACK
"There will be none of that," said Mayor Harrison. Dowell referred to the mayor's remarks quoted in the press in "glamorizing terms." He termed them a personal attack.

Mulliner said he resented the

"They were carrying out an old custom which was an improper one."

"The amount of $300 spent for this purpose is a mere bagatelle with the corporation spending over $6,000,000 and I see no justification for the criticism," said Dowell referring to the mayor's dinner.

Ald. Robert Macmillan said he felt the mayor was within his rights and he took no exception to the remarks.

Ald. Jim Neely voiced objection to the mayor going to service clubs and "telling what happened last year." Ald. Donald Smith thanked the mayor for "bringing this to light." He termed it an education, not a waste of time.

The C.C.F. Joins Bevan

IN THE STRUGGLE BETWEEN MR. Attlee and Mr. Bevan for control of the British Labor Party the C.C.F. in Canada has taken its stand with candor and courage. It is with Mr. Bevan.

This is clear from a statement from the C.C.F. national council. By denouncing the Lisbon rearmament program of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the C.C.F. aligns itself completely with the Bevanite left wing of socialism.

Up to recent times the C.C.F. has always represented itself as the child and counterpart of the British Labor Party. When the Labor government came to office in Britain the C.C.F. hailed it as the saviour of the nation, endorsed its policies and demanded that Canada follow them. When these policies, added to the damage of two wars, brought Britain to the brink of disaster the C.C.F. modified its tone but it never repudiated its spiritual parent.

However, when the British Labor Party split between the moderates under Mr. Attlee and the sans-culottes under Mr. Bevan, the C.C.F. evidently felt that it must make a choice. The choice is perfectly clear. The foreign policy proclaimed by the national council of the C.C.F. is exactly the policy of Mr. Bevan and repudiates outright the policy of Mr. Attlee.

Since the C.C.F. has ceased to be a significant force in the politics of Canada and has no real influence in Parliament, its internal quarrels between left and right are of no large public concern. But the proposition which it now presents to the public in foreign affairs is worth consideration.

It argues that the free world should reduce its rearmament plans and use its resources in economic reconstruction. No one will deny that economic reconstruction is desperately needed, that rearmament will not succeed permanently without it. The question is one of timing and of priorities.

The view of the free world's governments and of the British Labor Party's official leaders is that rearmament cannot wait until the world is prosperous, for by that time it will probably be too late. And the Lisbon program is based further on the proposition that there can be no peaceful settlement with Russia and hence no chance of enduring prosperity until the free world has sufficient strength to bring Russia to the bargaining point. By the Bevan policy the free world would abandon its attempt to reach that strength and would take a chance on Russia's peaceful intentions. In this respect the sincerity of the C.C.F. is not to be doubted but its judgment will not be accepted by the Canadian people.

Unfortunately the C.C.F.'s judgment is warped as usual by emotion. Its foreign policy always is governed by its suspicion of the United States because the United States is "capitalistic" and hence dangerous.

The same phobia against the American system is the dominant factor in Mr. Bevan's thinking. When Mr. Coldwell once publicly wished that an ocean lay between Canada and the United States he was expressing the origins of the present policy long before Mr. Bevan appeared.

The Canadian people have no reason to trust the judgment of the C.C.F. in foreign affairs for it has been generally wrong.

It began on Sept. 8, 1939, with the declaration that Canada should confine itself in the war to the defense of its own shores, giving only economic aid abroad and sending no military expedition outside the country.

After the war the C.C.F. proposed in effect to scrap our joint defense agreement with the United States by keeping any American troops out of this country.

It was lukewarm toward the defense of Korea, which Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan seemed to regard as the defense of American big business. And now the C.C.F. is against Lisbon.

Mr. Pearson says Russian Communism regards N.A.T.O. as aggressive, which it is not. "It is sad to see," he adds, "that the C.C.F. seems to be moving towards that position."

Mr. Coldwell replies angrily that he is not a Communist. So far as we are aware, no one ever said he was. On the contrary, he has courageously tried to purge his party of Communism, though not with entire success so far.

His sincerity and his hatred of Communism are not questioned by anyone who knows him. But it remains true that he and his party have adopted the Bevan line which, as Mr. Pearson foresees, would destroy the plans of N.A.T.O. and the chance to defend Europe.

The Worst Kind Of Debt

VARIOUS PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS which have borrowed heavily of late in Wall Street say they are taking no serious gamble on the future value of the Canadian dollar. If the dollar dropped in relation to the American counterpart then, of course, a Canadian borrower repaying a loan in the United States would have to pay a dollar plus the unfavorable exchange rate. But, we are now assured, this will not happen. The Canadian dollar will always be worth as much as the American or more.

How anyone can be sure of this we don't know. Why is the Canadian dollar worth slightly more than the American? Is it because we are selling in the United States more than we are buying there and thus creating a high American demand for Canadian dollars in the normal course of trade? That would be a satisfactory situation but unfortunately our dollar has not risen from that sound cause.

We have been selling in the United States far less than we have bought there. Lacking other factors our dollar would be less valuable than the American because in such an unbalanced trade there would be less demand for our dollar than for the American. Recently, however, the United States has poured investment into Canada—enough to counteract the trade deficit. That is what has driven our dollar up. When provincial treasurers announce that the American investment will always continue large enough to maintain the value of our dollar they may turn out right. They may not. We doubt someone that they can foresee the course of international trade and investment which has baffled the greatest economists of the past.

However, assuming that our dollar will always be at par or higher still the borrowing of money in a foreign country is not a desirable policy for any government. When the interest and then the principal must be paid how does the borrower secure the American dollars? They can be secured only by the sale of Canadian goods in the United States over and above the amount of our imports from there; or else by further borrowing in the United States. Whenever we borrow American dollars we increase the future difficulty of our trade, we tend to unbalance it still further, we give hostages to economic fortune.

At a time of huge revenues—all governments should be reducing debt against a rainy day, not increasing it. At least they should not be increasing the debt which Canada owes to a foreign nation.

Noted Far Afield

NEWS OF RACIAL ANTI-PATHIES, such as the vote in a San Francisco suburb which prevented a Chinese family from making its home in the district, travels fast. Less common is the evidence that the brotherhood of mankind is expanding, hence less frequently found in the headlines.

It is encouraging, though, to find that instances of Christian tolerance and democratic sharing do spread their efforts and exert an influence far from their sources. In this regard we read with pleasure that the Edmonton Journal has taken approving editorial note of doings in this province.

The Alberta paper commends the recent election of a Sikh to the presidency of the Alma Mater Society—the main student group—of the University of British Columbia. It recalls, too, a similar occurrence a year or two ago when another lad, also an East Indian, was elected president of the Victoria High School students' council.

And such evidences of fraternal spirit, pleasing in themselves, can have larger effects, the Journal observes. "High school and college students grow up, some to become national leaders," it says. "The B.C. incident may well promise better international relationships among coming generations."

That is, of course, true. But paradoxically enough, the millennium will not have arrived until such items cease to appear in the newspapers. Not until it is so common as to cease to be newsworthy will racial tolerance have achieved its proper place in our lives.

Quo Vadis, Critics? How About Those Lions? Layman Finds Fault With Handling of Reviews

AN INTRIGUING letter appeared in the drama mailbag of the New York Times last week.

The letter-writer suggested that the reason so many productions were being panned was that the critics were becoming jaded. Consequently, he argued, the critics should be "spelled off," replaced by someone with a fresh point of view every now and then.

This would doubtless be a shocking and horrendous thought to the first-nighters, who have grown comfortable in their plush aisle seats and must know in their inner souls (or reasonable facsimile thereof) that they enjoy the greatest racket in the world: getting paid for watching superior talents in action.

This letter was directed to drama critics. It also applies to those who comment on movies.

Take, for instance, the current "Quo Vadis." The critics sneered at this picture from lofty heights. They railed against Robert Taylor's scowls (and howls). They snickered at Deborah Kerr going to the death of a Christian martyr "without a hair out of place." One of them had the audacity to refer to Finlay Currie's moving narrative (as Simon, called Peter) as "a piece of tent-show evangelism."

But did they say anything about the 65 lions, slaving at the prospect of those tender Christian joints? They did not!

Did they comment on the performance of the 450 horses? Or the 30,000 extras?

Did they say anything about the stark drama of Buddy Baer's semi-wind-

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

IF there is anything duller or more ineffectual than Artificial Swearing, I'd like (in my morbid way) to know what it is. You all know the social menace who keeps saying: "Great jumping codfish, boy!" or "Son of a gun!" or "Well, I'll be sugared!" Yes... I know... we fathers of young chilluns have to adopt this soft talk for a very special purpose, but that's no reason why bachelors and grandfathers and the childless and other emancipated types should fall into line.

Nevertheless (as they say in the lower slums), there are a few good words in the way of fake swearing. "Gosh" has always been pretty good... it is something like 400 or 500 years old, by the way. "Golly" has a negroid charm. "Doggone" is very useful.

WELL, I was looking at a German atlas the other day and I ran across a synthetic swearword that would make your hair stand on end if it was said in a proper guttural fashion. The Tropic of Cancer is variously known to the Germans as der Krebskreis or die Krebslinie. But in my atlas it is der Wendekreis des Krebses. And if you shout that out in the proper way, with all the gutturals, carrying the weight, you really have a swearword that's worth using. "ven-dub-crie-des-crieb-zuhss," with plenty of rolling and spitting on those R's, and hatred thrown into those K sounds.

ONCE had a foolish little French teacher who tried to persuade me that "crepuscule." It said in a French way, was a good substitute for profanity. Little did he know. He's dead now, so I can't answer him back till I'm dead too. But when I meet him next, on that distant shore, and he greets me with his God-fearing "Crepuscule!" I shall reply, civilly but firmly, with "Wendekreis des Krebses!" For which I shall probably be slung out of Heaven. But heck, if Heaven is the right place for my old French teacher, then it's no place for me anyhow. That's one point he and I'd agree on.

A CONSTANT SURPRISE ANY advertising that becomes a household word is probably good advertising, no matter how silly it is. All the same, I can never quite understand that British tobacco company which advertises in all the English papers that comes my way. Ever since I was a kid I've seen its pictures of men in deserts and jungles and Arctic wastes, opening their tins of this famous tobacco. (And jolly nice it is, too. I am smoking one form of it at this moment, which is what reminded me of the advertisement.)

WELL, the rugged outdoor types are always astonished to find this tobacco has remained airtight in an airtight tin, and waterproof in a waterproof tin, and so on. This staggers them so much, they sit down and write a letter to the company, which duly gets printed along with a fanciful portrait of themselves. And the company always sounds as flabbergasted as the writers themselves. Year in, year out, they just can't get over it.

Me. I can get over it with the greatest of ease. To my simple mind, an airtight tin is airtight on purpose. My only surprise would be to find it leaking. I guess I've lost childhood's greatest gift, the Sense of Wonder.

PUT THAT IN YOUR PIPE AND SMOKE IT TALKING of smoking, I was shown an advertisement for a briar pipe which is valued by its maker at $2,500... retail, not wholesale. I am happy to say. How on earth does the factory arrive at this price? Why not $2,499 or $2,600?

What fun it must be to set prices on such objects! "Say, Bill, that's a nicely-grained bit of wood. It should be worth twenty or thirty bucks. Let's call it two thousand and see who'll buy it." "Two thousand is too much of a round figure, Bert. It might look arbitrary, like. Better make it twenty-five hundred." "How is the demand for twenty-five hundred dollar pipes these days, Bill?" "Pretty steady, Bert, pretty steady." "We've been selling one every three years for as long as I can remember. I guess we can't complain."

No, I guess they can't. I don't think their type of customer can complain, either. If he's the sort of man who wants a pipe for $2,500, then he's going to be fixed up just the way he likes it.

MORE ABOUT PIPES I HAVE seen one pipe that's queerer than a $2,500 model. It was in a tobacco shop in Boston. It was made of cigar leaf, moulded into the shape of a pipe, nobody could tell me why. It could be smoked only once, naturally, because it was really a distorted cigar, not a pipe. And it was called the Kent-Shire Cig-pipe... heaven help us. Kent is no more a shire than a cigar is a pipe... or than a pipe-shaped monstrosity is a cigar. I asked the man if he sold many. None, he told me. Good for Boston!

up with the wild bull? (Baer won in straight falls.) Why did they ignore the speech of the deposed general as he hung from a cross, the flames licking at his toga? What about the glorious Technicolor? What about the scenes in Nero's harem, when he peeks at the dancing girls through rose-tinted glasses?

All these, of course, were ignored by the critics. They cannot, however, ignore the box-office statistics. According to trade papers, the two most prolific "draws" in the country today are "Quo Vadis" and "The Greatest Show On Earth," which is Cecil B. de Mille's treatment of the Ringling family.

The moral is obvious: pay no attention to critics.

What the public wants is circuses, not bread.—E.N.

Taking the Patient for a Ride

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

AT THE beginning I was delighted to learn that Hamish had suddenly developed a passion for gardening.

He wanted to get out with a spade and a hoe, that was all right with me, and if he managed to grow anything on the property, that was even better. My wife had been giving me suggestive glances every time the "Garden Man" came on the radio, as though to say: "Well, it's spring—what are you waiting for?" and if there is anything I dislike more than physical labor it is probably physical labor.

And suddenly here was Hamish going down to the garden every morning and turning the soil and hoeing and furrowing, and I said to my wife: "After all, dear, why should I interfere with the poor man's happiness?"

Of course, I should have known better about Hamish. He has never done anything by halves, not since I first knew him as the assistant janitor in my old apartment-house Back East. Everything that Hamish touches somehow turns out to be a production.

For instance, take the matter of seeds. A couple of weeks ago I received a letter from a well-known seed company which read: "Dear Sir, Thank you very much for your order, which is being shipped immediately by freight. Perhaps you will pardon our curiosity, but we were struck by the fact that you gave an Island address. Is it your intention to place the entire Island under cultivation, and perhaps part of the mainland? Yours very truly."

"Hamish," I said anxiously, "how many seeds did you order?" "Oh," said Hamish, "I just told them to send me a pound of everything in their catalogue. After all, we really don't know what things will do well the first year. It's wise to have plenty of substitutes." And then you take the fertilizer. I never realized there were so many types of fertilizer, and how opinions differ about them. Hamish, of course, sent away for a list of books on the subject, and between those and all the garden experts who come on the air, he was to say the least—confused.

He would read one book, and the next day a truck would drive up to the house and dump a load of fertilizer. But before Hamish got around to digging this into the garden, he would, of course, have read another authority with totally different ideas, and the next day another truck would pull up and unload something else.

At the present time it is impossible to see our house for mounds of fertilizer and even the trucks have difficulty getting near the place. Not that the drivers particularly want to, at this point.

The climax, however, was a truck that came up the road the other day. The driver leaned out of the cab and hailed me. "Where do you want this load dumped?" he asked.

"What is it?" I inquired.

"Sawdust."

Well, I immediately tackled Hamish and demanded to know what he intended to do with a load of sawdust, and Hamish said: "Don't be silly. Don't you know the best method to grow vegetables is under sawdust? You just put the seeds right on the ground and cover them with a layer of sawdust. My," he added, "you certainly don't know much about gardening."

Well, Hamish planted his first seeds the other day—under sawdust. I caught him going down to the garden with a bag of seeds and a gallon of kerosene, and my curiosity got the better of me.

"Look, Hamish," I said, "pardon my stupidity, but why the coal oil?"

"I'm planting peas," Hamish said. "All good gardeners dip their pea seeds in kerosene, which keeps the birds away."

"Oh," I said, "I didn't know."

It was last night that Hamish went down to inspect the garden. He said he was going to lift some of the sawdust and see how the peas were doing. So off he went in the dark. Mr. Garden Man himself.

It was Little Augie who first noticed the flames. Of course all of us went out—Col. S. Skeffington-Smuts (Ret.) and Anastasia and my wife and my child and myself.

"Heavens!" my wife screamed. "The garden's on fire!"

Suddenly a blackened figure staggered out of the smoke and flame in our direction. It was Hamish, slightly sawdust-broiled.

"I forgot my flashlight," he told us. "So I lit a match to see if the peas were growing, and they all caught fire. It must have been the kerosene..."

Now Hamish is trying to find out if sawdust ash is good fertilizer.

'Apology—Haw!'

Editorial in The Vancouver Sun

EVEN the most hot-tempered of B.C. legislators probably regret Monday's tantrum about The Victoria Times.

The great majority wisely blocked the move to summon The Times' publisher to withdraw and apologize for his paper's opinion about the motives of the Legislature's hospital insurance inquiry board. The Times had said the board's advice to drop co-insurance was dictated by politics.

What a ridiculous scene that would have been! We can picture the publisher standing at the bar of the House and defying the Legislature to make him swallow his editorial words.

Why should he change his mind just because a group of aggrieved politicians allow their anger to run away with their judgment? If he thinks the inquiry board was animated by political rather than financial considerations he should say so. Even if he's wrong he should say what he thinks and why he thinks it.

Newspapers are public servants. Legislators are public servants. Legislators can express their opinions without a too nice regard for the sensitivity of other legislators or of newspapers. They often do. They could have said what they thought about the Victoria Times. Some of them did. But to demand that the Times take back what it said about them is going much too far.

The Times could be wrong. Newspapers aren't infallible. Neither are legislators. The Times could be unduly suspicious just as some legislators can be unduly touchy. But the public interest isn't served by efforts to muzzle anybody.

In this case, for all we know the Times was merely reflecting an opinion that might be held by a great many private citizens. Surely the incensed legislators wouldn't wish to stop the process of individual thought. Or would that be the next step if they could get away with gagging the press?

GOOD FOR FIRES

AGES ago I wrote letters about the Times' attitude but burned the letters realizing what Keate and Hutchison were as far as sportsmanship is concerned. If I brought the contents of those letters up now (and one was about the affection Keate apparently has for Holme's—to me—spurious views) the editors would come back with some of those spiteful little footnotes they append retaliatory to letters.

Which should learn that the Times is still good for lighting the fire with and Hutchison (like the man in Maurice Samuel's book) is proud of having produced himself, and Keate is overbearing so reactionary apparently that he isn't worth considering, intellectually.

Hutchison is epitomized by a sneer, and Keate by a vacuity, seemingly. The irony Hutchison seems to think is so profound is only cheap maliciousness.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Congratulations to you and your chief editor for handling of the "offensive" editorial—and also for its contents.

I think it is disgusting when elected representatives are so lacking in realism or moral honesty that they earn the kind of criticism which you have handed out, and even more disgusting when they refuse to take it.

However, The Times has provided some very good entertainment for a lot of people, and I can say that Bruce Hutchison's column last night gave me the best laugh for a long while. I have sent all the clippings to Vancouver.

I hope you see fit to blast the I.C. and A. Act report submitted by Arthur Ash and Co. when the time is ripe. That report is equally poor, and for the same reasons.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"WHEN you come right down to it," said the Elevator Man, "there is very little we really know. There are a lot of things we believe. There are also a good many we accept, with the reservation that we'll change our mind if we want to. And then there are a host of things which we doubt or actually disbelieve—and we're not necessarily right about them either. But the mind is a wonderful mechanism. It can adapt itself to a tough situation easier than dough falling into a cookie tin. It can work both sides of a proposition like a man playing an accordion. And it can hold as many conflicting opinions at one time as a roomful of ladies' aiders. In short, the mind is like the drawer in a kitchen table—it'll hold anything you chuck into it and even squeeze a crazy sort of logic out of it all. Going down?"

"That's the reason," said the Elevator Man, "you find politicians calling for lower taxes and more government spending in the same breath—and the reason why voters swallow it. It also explains why a woman can set out to buy a blue dress she's been planning on for weeks and come home with a snapdecision yellow one. And it helps to make sense of the actions of a man who can deliver a speech on safety first and then look into the gas tank with a lighted match. The mind seems to have compartments into which different classes of ideas fall, and if two of them are directly opposite, never the twain shall meet. Lower main!"

"Of course," said the Elevator Man, "you can simplify all this. If conflicting ideas disturb you you can be like the old judge, 'I always listen to the plaintiff, but I never listen to the defendant.' Well, I did at first," said the old timer, "but I found that it confused me. But for most of us life isn't so simple. We just go on thinking one thing and doing another, and leave the onlookers to figure it out."

Old, Old Story

Edmonton Journal

People who think things were better in the good old days may be disillusioned by a couple of clay tablets, dated about 1600 B.C., recently dug up in Iraq. They are covered with inscriptions in the ancient Babylonian language, consisting mostly of collections of proverbs—some of which, with only slight alteration, are still in common use today.

One section, however, was obviously a letter to the editor. Translated, it reads:

"The poor man is better dead than alive. If he has bread he has no salt. If he has salt he has no bread. If he has a house he has no stall, if he has a stall he has no house."

It sounds as if they had inflation and a housing problem thirty-five hundred years ago in Babylon.

Invites Harry and Joe For Informal Peace Chat

OAKVILLE, Ont., March 14 (BUP)—A restaurant operator today asked President Truman and Josef Stalin to come here and iron out the world's troubles with him over a cup of tea.

"Five years ago," 57-year-old grandfather John G. Foster told the British United Press before wiring Washington and Moscow, "I made the same request and people laughed it off."

"Now I want to try again with telegrams and an open letter that Truman and Stalin will see in the papers and hear on the radio."

Foster, a native of London, Eng., came to Canada 32 years ago and now operates a small restaurant here. He said he wanted to talk Truman and Stalin into pooling their defense budgets and using the money co-operatively for "peaceful aims."

"They could use it to build homes for the homeless, clothing for the ragged, food for the undernourished, for education and for a flock of other peaceful things," he said.

Foster asked the press and radio to see that this message in addition to a similarly worded wire got to the White House and the Kremlin.

CARSON KICKS SQUAMISH RD. PLAN'S PROPS

Brands Government's Scheme Impractical

The sharp difference of opinion between the Liberals and the Progressive-Conservatives over the proposed Vancouver-Squamish road, and its effect on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway extension, was brought into full light in the Legislature Thursday night.

E. C. Carson, former works minister in the Coalition government, now sitting in Opposition, severely criticized Premier Byron Johnson's "hasty and ill-considered plan" to build a Vancouver-Squamish road this year.

The issue has been the only major difference of opinion between the two parties in the session.

Carson, in his first speech of the session, told the House a paved road connecting Vancouver with Squamish through the Capilano Valley could be constructed for slightly more than half the cost of a gravel road along the coastal route from Horseshoe Bay to Squamish, as proposed by the government.

Most important of all, he said, is that use of the Capilano route would still leave the coastal route open for the P.G.E. railway extension.

CAPILANO LINK
In his 90-minute address, Carson said $500,000 would give a good access road between Vancouver and Squamish. The sum of about $2,500,000 would connect the present highway out of Vancouver over the Capilano with Britannia and then into Squamish.

In comparison, he said, Premier Johnson plans to spend $3,000,000 for only a start on the Howe Sound route "which will conflict with the railway and make it economically impossible."

The former minister dealt with the opposition of the Vancouver water board to the Capilano route, and pointed out there is still available the Indian River route. This, he warned, would be more expensive, longer, but still practical.

"My father drove cattle over it, and it is certainly possible to build a road," said Carson.

"The P.G.E., he continued, had been kicked about for years. He felt deeply about it, he said, because it concerned the people in his riding.

PRUDENT MOVE
Pointing out the increased traffic on the P.G.E., Carson said it would seem the height of prudence to extend the line to Vancouver.

Carson also stressed that J. M. Stewart, P.G.E. chief engineer, told the railway committee this week that the railway must spend $2,000,000 soon for new tugs and barges to handle increased traffic.

Premier Johnson, he said, had promised a road to Squamish in 1949 and in 1950 recommended a railway. Carson said it was a "bitter blow" to him.

He emphasized, however, that he had always maintained that if there was a choice between the two he would take the railway but never stop urging a highway.

Carson, termed it a "crime" that the survey of the Capilano route had been stopped when it was so near completion.

At this point, Premier Johnson asked Carson if the water board was not unalterably opposed to the Capilano route.

Carson said all he asked was "a common sense, horse sense approach" to the matter and consideration of costs and other factors involved. He said many centres allow travel through watersheds, and Victoria is even permitting selective logging.

The Lillooet member said he has been informed that Vancouver is still willing to discuss the matter. He stressed he has never asked that "we arbitrarily go through the watershed." Careful consideration is all he has requested, he said.

Coronation Cocktail Hits Market Shortly

LONDON, March 14 (CP)—British bartenders hope to come up with a perfect coronation cocktail. W. J. Tarling, president of the United Kingdom Bartenders' Guild, said it is likely hundreds of so-called "coronation" cocktails will soon be on the market. Most of the drinks feature the colors red, white and blue.

Drug Ring Reported At Oxford University

OXFORD, Eng., March 14 (CP)—The under-graduate magazine Cherwell says the problem of drug-taking at Oxford is more serious than many people like to admit. "There are rumors of a marijuana circle operating in the university once a month," says an article by editor Anthony Thompson, adding that there is "indiscriminate" use of such drugs as benzedrine and phenobarbitone.

CANADIAN LEGISLATURES

N.B. Budget Anticipates No New Changes in Current Tax Structure

By CANADIAN PRESS
A record high surplus for the fiscal year ending March 13, 1953, is predicted by New Brunswick's secretary-treasurer, J. G. Boucher.

In his third budget, presented to the Legislature Thursday, Boucher estimated revenue at $46,492,094 and expenditure at $45,175,903. He said he did not anticipate any new changes in the tax structure.

A revised estimate of the surplus for the current fiscal year, ending March 31, was $1,222,468. The original estimate was $286,451.

NOVA SCOTIA

The Nova Scotia Legislature ordered a highway foreman to appear before its public accounts committee to give evidence on spending of public funds. A legal controversy over the committee's powers developed when committee chairman W. H. Pipe (L. Kings) asked the House for a motion ordering Leonard Swan of New West Annan to appear and give evidence.

New Nova Scotia liquor commission regulations, tabled by Geoffrey Stevens, minister in charge of liquor administration, provide for licenses to railways, permitting sale of beer and wine by bottle or glass in dining cars at mealtime. Annual license fee is $25.

SASKATCHEWAN

The Saskatchewan Legislature approved the government's 1952-53 budget by a vote of 28-14 following a two-week debate. Estimates now will be considered.

During the debate Thursday, Premier T. C. Douglas defended his C.C.F. government against what he called the Liberal party's "mud-slinging and muck-raking."

ALBERTA

The Alberta Legislature refused to give second reading to a bill which would make membership in a proposed oil agents' association compulsory for all wholesale oil-products dealers in the province. The non-government bill, sponsored by L. C. Halmrast (S.C., Warner), is called "an act respecting the bulk oil and gas agents' association."

The House adopted a motion from Attorney-General Lucien Maynard that the bill be referred back to committee.

ONTARIO

The Ontario Legislature was urged by Art Child (P.C., Wentworth) to pass a law "with teeth in it" to protect amateur athletes from exploitation. He is a well-known goaltender who played for several championship clubs.

He said young hockey players are being "exploited by the mobbed interests in sport . . . through the intricacies of the C form and negotiation list."

OCEAN ISLES

Of the 3,000 islands included in the Bahamas group, only about 20 are permanently settled.

8 Victoria Daily Times FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1952

On the OUTDOOR FRONT

By ROY THORSEN

Old-time trout fishermen in this area would like to see the crawfish (or crayfish) knocked off the list of legitimate lures anglers can use in Cowichan River.

It's the No. 1 killer. Nothing that has been produced in the way of a facsimile of a salmon egg can beat it," declared Roger Monteith.

Thorsen

"I think it is about time some conservation-minded sportsmen's club was given the picture on the leadlines of this lure and took action to have it barred through the Game Act," he added.

Inspector George Stevenson, boss of the island for the B.C. Game Department, indicated today that he has been aware of this situation for some time.

However, we don't think the inspector can get any action from his superiors on registering individual complaints. Action might follow if some sportsmen's club was to take it up.

with the game commissioners in Vancouver.

"There are plenty of the old-time fishermen of Victoria who see eye-to-eye with me on the crawfish," said Maj. Monteith.

"This live bait is particularly deadly during the latter part of October and in November," said Monteith.

He is one who believes the trout season on the island should close at the end of October. It actually ends Nov. 30.

"Too many poor-condition trout are taken out of the river during the last month—most of them by the person we know as the 'meat-grabber' using the crawfish," Monteith continued.

However, no matter what type of lure is used, he'd like to see all fishing closed Oct. 31.

"During November the fish are sluggish, no sport to them, and allowing fishermen to take them is cutting down on the hatch from spawning," Monteith said.

On the freshwater fishing front, local experts report that water levels in lake and river are fine.

"If we get some balmy weather fishing should become good," one in the know reported.

Don Kiers of the local game office, Elliott Street, after perusing the reports on island freshwater fishermen from game wardens estimates that Douglas's (or Roger's) Lake at Cobble Hill and the Puntledge River at Courtenay, judging from results of the past week, are the best bets for anglers on the island at the present time.

On the steelhead and trout front, the rise of fish is reported as "sporadic."

Jack Grey and Creigh Allan both got some trout Wednesday at the same lake.

The public is invited to attend and join in the clay-pigeon shoot at the Victoria Gun Club, off Albert Head Road, Sunday afternoon. Howard Damasko, secretary, reports a practise shoot has been carded. Shooting will start at 1 and continue until dusk.

Smitten By High School Hoopitis

High school kids all over the city have been struck by a strange malady recently. Symptoms include a soulful look, usually directed at the ceiling; inability to concentrate on studies and butterflies in the stomach when basketball is mentioned. Medical authorities are baffled by the outbreak but rumors have it that the Vancouver Island high school basketball tournament, which started this afternoon, is the direct cause of the indisposition. Typical of those affected are Mount View students Elinor Thompson, Alan Snowsall and John Pritchard, whose minds are miles away. The boys play for the team while Elinor is a cheer leader.

HOOP FEVER HITS MOUNT VIEW

Coach Frank Snowsall explained that all he had to do was to prevent his players from getting too excited at the prospect of being island champs. He was worried that they might get stage fright.

Principal Dr. J. M. Thomas explained that there wasn't a school in the tournament that Mount View feared. He said, "Our boys play a winning game."

Students in the hallways shouted things like, "You sure picked the right team to photograph but you should have waited until they got their cups." If other teams in the league find difficulty piercing a zone defense, you can lay your money on the Saanich hoopsters. The pride of the club is its renowned zone coverage and they have practised the defensive manoeuvre until every player knows it like he knows how to tie his shoes.

But then, you have to excuse Mount View for its tremendous enthusiasm. That's the way it is with all the schools in the tournament. It's a mixture of school pride, the spirit of competition and the unpredictable, boundless enthusiasm of high school kids. It is these elements that make them go out and hoister themselves hoarse for their teams.

You can see it all, as exemplified by high school kids of all the local schools tonight and Saturday night. Just wander up to Victoria High School gym and see what makes a high school kid tick.

Oh, yes, besides Mount View there are a few more basketball clubs that figure they have ownership rights on the trophies. Even Mount View will concede that Alberni, Vic High, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Nanaimo, Cowichan and Cumberland have pretty sharp teams and will take some beating.

And even if you don't like basketball there will be a 21-piece band and cheer leaders galore for your entertainment and edification.

STAMPS GET JUMP IN PUCK RACE
Co-Operative Deal Needed By Cougars

The three dimensional screen comes into focus again tonight as Victoria Cougars host Tacoma Rockets at Memorial Arena.

Through various mediums Victoria hockey fans and the Cougars, of course, will plot the course of the Pacific Coast Hockey League race for sixth place.

Here, for example, the Cougars will rely on winning, as they must do in this one and in all other games if they hope to remain residents of this area after March 23.

In Vancouver, the New Westminster Royals will, it is hoped, concentrate on winning the league championship.

N.H.L. Race Still Static

Habs Consolidate Second; Bruins Ease by Rangers

With all six National Hockey League clubs scheduled to make five more appearances before the season closes March 23, Thursday night's two games failed to clear up the issue of just which four are going to get into the post-season Stanley Cup playoffs.

Montreal Canadiens took a firmer grip on second place with a hard-fought 3-1 victory over the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs. The win at home moved the Habs five points out in front of the Leafs while Boston Bruins gained a 3-3 tie with the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks and took over fourth place from New York Rangers by a single point.

The Canadiens have yet to clinch the second spot. The desperate Leafs—trying to escape the fate of meeting the powerful N.H.L. champion Detroit Red Wings in the first round of cup play—could close the gap in a double weekend date against Rangers. In the same way, Rangers could pass Boston who meet Canadiens twice.

Montreal lead Leafs 1-0 at the end of the first period and stretched it to 2-0 by the finish of the middle session. Two goals—one for each club—produced the 3-1 final.

Dick Gamble, Doug Harvey and Bernie Geoffroy were the Habs scorers while Sid Smith came through for the losers.

ROLLINS FANS
The surprise goal of the lot was a looping 95-footer by Harvey near the end of the second period. Harvey let fly from his own side of the red line, the puck landing about 10 feet in front of the Leaf goal, taking an upward bounce and looping in. Goalie Al Rollins, playing the shot casually, fanned on the final hop.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION
Both teams earned the half of the 16 penalties, but there was only one fight, George Armstrong and Paul Meger tangling in the first period. Meger ended up with a shiner from one of Armstrong's lefts while both players earned a major and a minor for their troubles.

At Chicago, it was Ed Sandford who saved the day for the Bruins, banging in the tying marker early in the final period after the Black Hawks had swept into a 3-2 lead in the middle heat.

Trail, Kelowna Advance To Amateur Puck Finals

TRAIL, B.C., March 14 (CP).—Trail Smoke Eaters trounced Nelson Maple Leafs 10-2 Thursday night to move into the British Columbia senior amateur hockey finals.

Smoke Eaters won the best-of-five Kootenay finals three games to two. It was Trail's fifth straight Kootenay win.

Smokies were in command of the game all the way. They led 4-0 at the end of the first, 6-1 at the end of the second and outscored Leafs 4-1 in the final stanza.

Kenny Stanton, Mike Fischer and Mike Shabady paced Trail with two goals apiece. Bill Ramsden, Bob Wiest, Johnny Ryppen and Frank Turk scored singles.

Nelson goal-getters were Red Koehle and Glen Smith.

The victory was a costly one for Smokies. Midway in the third period Ryppen was boarded behind the Nelson goal and suffered a broken arm.

KELOWNA, B.C. March 14 (CP).—Rampling in three goals in a wild 10-minute overtime period, Kelowna Packers Thursday night downed Nanaimo Clippers 6-3 to advance into the B.C. senior hockey final against Trail Smoke Eaters.

Packers were never headed as they captured the deciding game in the best-of-five semifinal. Packers won the first and third games 6-1 and 7-1 while the game

Nanaimo club fought back to even the series twice with a 4-1 victory in the second game and 2-1 in the fourth.

Outshooting the islanders in every period, Kelowna hiked a 2-1 first-period lead to 3-1 in the second. Clippers fought back with a pair of counters in the third to force overtime.

The extra session was only a little over a minute old when Joe Kaiser drilled home Frank Hoskins' pass for the winning tally.

A procession of Nanaimo penalties as Clippers turned to roughing Packers was climaxed with a bitter wrangle between Nanaimo coach Eddie Shamlock and referee Bill Neilson of Vernon. Neilson ordered Shamlock out of the box and called on R.C.M.P. to escort him to the dressing room.

With Nanaimo two men short, Mike Durban added a clincher.

For the mathematicians the league standings tell the story. It's the Stampers in front of Vancouver Canucks by one point with the Cougars four points off the playoff pace. Both Vancouver and Victoria have a game in hand.

Calgary outplayed Edmonton Thursday night as George Agar scored two goals in the 4-2 triumph over the Flyers. The two points boosted Agar's point-scoring leadership over Eddie Dorohoy to seven points.

Angelo 50-43 in 63 innings Thursday night.
Hoppe, the 64-year-old grey eagle, has been winning championships since he was 18. Masako is playing outside her native Japan for the first time.

MERRILL STOPPED
VANCOUVER, March 14 (CP)—The veteran Earl Turner of Richmond, Calif., stopped Jimmy Merrill of Vancouver in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout Thursday night.

Mixed Doubles Champs Unseated In Tourney

WINNIPEG, March 14 (CP)—Marge Shedd and Bill Purcell of Toronto Thursday provided the biggest upset in the Canadian badminton championships by defeating defending champions Jean Bardsley and Daryl Thompson of Vancouver in the mixed doubles.

Today's play will be confined to the semi-finals in the junior women's and men's events and consolation competitions. Semi-final matches in the open events will be played tonight, with the junior finals squeezed in between.

Besides the mixed doubles upset, Thursday's program was highlighted by the sidelining of Montreal's Gordon Simpson due to an injury.

Simpson, a member of Canada's Thomas Cup team, suffered a torn tendon in his right ankle when he fell during the first game of a quarter-final men's singles match against Ken Forsythe of Winnipeg.

Simpson, who flew home after the night's matches, also defaulted his men's doubles and mixed doubles quarter-final games.

METAGART BEATEN
Although beaten in the mixed event, Thompson smashed his way into the semi-finals of the men's singles and doubles. He came from behind in the eighth against Jack Muir of Toronto to win 7-15, 15-16 in the singles, then combined with Bert Jones to win 13-15, 15-16 in the doubles against John Carter and Jack Ewbank of Winnipeg.

The Vancouver giant goes against Forsythe in the top half of the semi-finals.

In the lower bracket are Al Williams of Calgary and Don Smythe of Toronto. Williams beat Dave Metagart of Vancouver, 15-12, 15-10, while Smythe defeated John Bouck of Vancouver, 15-6, 15-7.

Thompson and Jones will take on Bud Porter and Smythe of Toronto in the bottom half of the men's doubles. Porter and Smythe defeated Alf Ingall, Edmonton, and Frank Longridge, Saskatoon, 15-4, 15-8, in the eighth.

In the other semi-final, Forsythe and Williams play Muir and Bev Westcott of Toronto.

REID ELIMINATED
Top-ranking women's singles players, with one exception, won berths in the semi-finals. They were Marge Shedd and Joan Warren of Toronto, and Marj Mapp of Montreal. The only upset winner was Clair Lovett of Vancouver, who defeated third-seeded Lois Reid, also of Vancouver.

BASEBALL BRIEFS
By UNITED PRESS
MIAMI, Fla.—Manager Casey Stengel, whose world champion Yankees have won five of six exhibition starts, plans to pitch rookies Tom Gorman and Harry Schaeffer tonight against the Brooklyn Dodgers.
Stengel said he will use Ed Lopat and Frank Shea Saturday and Johnny Sain and Jim McDonald in the concluding contest of the three-game series with Brooklyn on Sunday.
A seven-run sixth inning when 12 men batted gave the Yankees an 11-6 victory over the Athletics Thursday at West Palm Beach. The Yankees' surprise was topped by rookie Andy Carey's two-run triple. Carey, the top candidate for the third-base job since Billy Martin broke two bones in his ankle, had a big day with a triple, double and single.

Aldermen Balk at City Wage Boosts; Talk of Cuts Despite Wyatt's Stand

Proposed wage increase of an average 11 1/4 per cent for 400 civic employees failed to pass City Council meeting Thursday.

During resultant debate, aldermen suggested staff cuts, elimination of some jobs, revision of some salaries downward.

City Manager Cecil Wyatt, who asked "favorable consideration" for the increase, said it was "reasonable" and not out of line with that prevailing in the locality.

The increase, reported in the Times Wednesday, which would cost the city an estimated $125,000 extra this year, will be discussed at a special meeting of the committee of the whole council within the next few days.

Council feared for the taxpayer and the person on fixed income. Aldermen feared, also, what might be the result if the city pushed the matter to conciliation.

Several agreed "somebody had to take a stand" somewhere.

City Manager Cecil Wyatt reported during debate he had received a request from the 14 senior civic officials who are not bargained for by City Hall Employees' Association.

PROTECTION SOUGHT
They asked that "pending a complete job revaluation" differential between salaries of senior employees and those in a lower bracket be not "further reduced" in any award made by the association.

Ald. Brent Murdoch contended wage increases were not the answer to the individual's economic problem. Ald. Don Smith disagreed.

"A wage increase would improve my situation," Smith argued. "There is little we can do if the increase is in keeping with the surrounding areas."

Ald. Robert Macmillan said the wage increase was warranted, but "There are a number of people working for Victoria who are not working. They could be eliminated. Now is the time to cut out deadwood."

Stating there was nothing personal in his remark, Macmillan said he felt the mayor's executive secretary was being paid far beyond what the job required, compared with other jobs in city hall. He felt some jobs could be rated downward.

MAYOR AGREES
"I agree with you," said Mayor Claude Harrison.

Said Ald. Margaret Christie: "Somebody's got to take a stand or the country is going to be ruined."

Some salaries looked "all too high" to the mayor, who said he might be wrong.

"Do I see a traffic engineering assistant at $420, building inspector, assistant engineer, mayor's executive secretary?" he asked, going down the $365 to $420 category.

It was pointed out the $420 was a maximum.

Ald. Percy Scourrah urged council to give serious consideration to conciliation. If it were possible to get along with less staff and ease the taxpayer's lot, he said he was for it.

Georgia Senator Plans Campaign

WASHINGTON, March 14 (UP).—Sen. Richard B. Russell, outstanding southern candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, is preparing to set up a full-fledged campaign organization to seek support outside of Dixie, it was disclosed today.

The Georgia senator hopes to pick up some convention delegates in the prairie and western states. He can already count on most of the southern delegates, according to most surveys.

Kamloops Bull Sale Brings Record Price

KAMLOOPS, March 14 (CP).—An all-time record for British Columbia was set Thursday at the Kamloops bull sale when the grand champion Hereford was sold for $5,000.

The bull, two-year-old Shingle Creek Lionheart II, was sold by Alex Gardner of Shingle Creek to the Earl's Court Ranch Ltd., owned by Col. Victor Spencer.

Competition at the auction was provided by J. C. Adam of Vancouver, owner of the Stump Lake Ranch near Kamloops.

MICROSCOPE STILL GOOD

BOSTON (UP).—Dr. Anna Quincy Churchill, 63, one of Boston's most distinguished students of minute animal tissue and a member of the Tufts Medical School staff since 1918, is still using the same microscope she bought in 1907.

Protest New Levy

LONDON, March 14 (Reuters).—The fur traders of London, most important fur market in the world, decided Thursday that a new budget tax of 100 per cent on their products must have been a mistake. Dealers angrily pointed this out in a resolution to the government, warning that if the tax stays it could mean the end of Britain's fur trade.

Rum stories...

"There was a coldness between the bear and myself when we first met on the ice-floe," said the bosun confidentially.

"However, by a fortunate chance I had with me a quantity of Lamb's Navy Rum. After several tots of this dark and heart-warming fluid, his attitude distinctly thawed. Before long we were fast friends.

"Crisis came when I discovered that we had food and water for fifteen years and rum for only a fortnight. I imposed rationing, of course, and this testing time exposed the dross in my companion's character. One night, I detected him searching me for the corkcrew. Taking the only manly course I slipped over the side with the rum while he was sleeping and, sustained by the body-building beverage, swam to the nearest licensed premises."

"A Rum story!" murmured the wedding guest thoughtfully.

"Most generous!" replied the mariner with seamanlike alacrity. "A Lamb's Navy Rum, if you please."

Kept In Dark, Carson Bitter

Premier Negotiated to End Bridge Tolls
Without Informing Him, Says Ex-Minister

Former Public Works Minister Ernest Carson told the Legislature Thursday night Premier Byron Johnson negotiated with Ottawa the removal of Pattullo Bridge tolls without informing him.

He said this action "hurt" him more than anything else.

"I was supposed to be a responsible minister of the Coalition government," said Carson. "But I had no idea these negotiations were going on."

If the premier had no confidence in him, Carson said, "he should have asked me to resign."

"Those are the things that hurt," the former minister said, "because I think I have a reputation of decency and reasonableness in this country."

He asked the premier to file all correspondence on the matter.

Premier Johnson said he would.

WOULD BREAK HAVE COME IF WISMER HOME?

Would British Columbia's Coalition government have broken up so soon if Attorney-General Gordon Wismer had been in the province?

This question has been argued in political circles ever since the province's political upheaval last January when Premier Byron Johnson fired his finance minister, Herbert Anscomb.

Former Works Minister E. C. Carson, who left the government with Anscomb, said in the Legislature Thursday it all wouldn't have happened at that time if Wismer, "the premier's strong right arm," had not been away.

Canadian City Plans Rapped By Professor

The average European city has more open spaces and areas than Canadian towns which have an over-abundance of land at their disposal for such purposes, Prof. F. Lasserre, director of School of Architecture, U.B.C., told the 4th regional conference of Community Planning Association of Canada here today. Canada, he warned in effect, was wasting space.

Lasserre through lantern slides showed how Canadian towns and cities were backward with regard to architectural planning in comparison with European cities which had less land to spare for town planning.

F. W. Nicolls, chairman of the Capital Planning Board of B.C., warned against the misuse of agricultural land on Vancouver Island.

"Every area of good farm land used for some purpose other than farming is a serious loss," he said. He was referring to the use of farm land for commercial, industrial and housing projects.

SUCCESS VARIED

Speaking on Canadian experience in metropolitan planning, Eric W. Thrift, director of the Metropolitan Planning Commission, Winnipeg, said success in this direction has varied and has not always achieved its purpose.

"Perhaps this is because we are all feeling our way and, in so doing, look about for someone else's experience to lean on... to profit from... to give us guidance," he said.

Thrift, who is regarded as a leading authority on town planning, said "there must be an honest and forthright willingness to co-operate and work together in order to achieve success in metropolitan town planning."

Other speakers included Prof. H. P. Oberlander, community and Regional Planning, U.B.C., and W. T. Lane, solicitor, chairman of the Vancouver Branch, C.P.A.C.

Rudder Drops, Screw Lost, Ship Crippled

Ss. Alcyone Angel, due at Esquimalt drydock at midnight Thursday for repairs to a cracked rudder, developed more trouble in Port Alberni.

As she pulled away from the dock, officers on the bridge heard a loud report from somewhere aft. Engines were stopped immediately—but not in time. A portion of the cracked rudder broke away and fell into the propeller, damaging it badly.

Now Alcyone Angel will have to be towed down coast, as she is a "dead" ship, without steerage or motive power. Island Tug and Barge's Island Commander is standing by, and a second tug will likely be dispatched to help bring the ship down.

She is a Liberty-type, with a Goldenhilt rudder, which apparently cracked and broke away along the offset. The ship will be brought down to Victoria early next week.

Health Board Wants Saanich

Inclusion of Saanich in the Union Board of Health is the aim of a committee struck by the board today.

Under chairmanship of Ald. Margaret Christie, who heads the Union Board, the committee will formulate a plan to include Saanich. The Union Board comprises the city and Esquimalt at present.

"It's just common sense," said Ald. Christie.

Proudfoot Resignation Accepted With 'Regret'

Resignation of City Prosecutor James J. Proudfoot was accepted unanimously "with sincere regret," by City Council Thursday.

Police Commission was authorized to make a temporary appointment. Proudfoot's resignation is effective immediately.

In accepting it, aldermen deplored recent publicity given the prosecutor in one Vancouver newspaper.

The young city prosecutor wrote:

"In view of the unfavorable and, I believe, unfair publicity I have received recently, I beg to tender herewith my resignation as prosecutor for the city of Victoria."

Proudfoot, one of Victoria's younger lawyers, was selected from nine other applicants for the position last fall on recommendation of Claude L. Harrison, prosecutor for 40 years.

Proudfoot submitted his resignation following his apprehension on a charge of driving a car while his ability was impaired by alcohol last Saturday in Nanaimo. He pleaded guilty to the charge Monday and was fined $200.

PRESS CRITICIZED

Ald. Jim Neely castigated the prominence given the story in a Vancouver newspaper and referred to the prosecutor as "a boy who had made a mistake."

"It might have happened to anyone of us and it is with great regret I accept the resignation," he said.

DULL WEATHER WANTED

Saanich Daff Growers Fear Too Early Crop

Little too early for the Easter market.

G. A. Vantreigh Jr., one of the largest flower growers on the island, said he has already begun to pick his early varieties of outdoor-grown daffodils.

"It will be touch-and-go," he said. "If dull weather holds out our main crop of King Alfreds will be blooming at the right time."

Vantreigh said last year the main crop bloomed too late for the Easter season, and resulted in a loss of thousands of dollars to growers.

"We may get our main crop a little early this year," he said. "Even if we do we will be able to get rid of all our flowers."

Most growers were of the opinion that the daffodil growers on the mainland would "hit it" just right this year.

Wednesday half holiday until next year's session of the Legislature, the mayor recommended a study of the matter be made by the tourist development committee.

Earl Ward of 1003 Government St., wrote suggesting merchants be allowed to stay open Wednesday afternoons during the tourist season. As the matter comes under provincial statute the city can do nothing at this time, the mayor said.

On recommendation of parks committee, application of V.I. Track Roadster Association for a surfaced race track in MacDonald Park was refused.

Letter asking the city to put $735 into a $1,500 fund to fight for freight rate parity with Vancouver was referred to tourist development committee.

Old Metchosin Stage To Be Preserved as Craigflower Museum Piece

By DAVE STOCK

Another link with Victoria's colorful early days has been found and set aside as a museum piece.

Latest acquisition of the museum at Craigflower School-house is the Rocky Point Stage Coach. The coach is a big-wheeled vehicle used early in the century to carry mail and passengers over the bumpy, twisting road between bustling Victoria and the rural communities at Metchosin, Albert Head and Rocky Point.

The relic of bygone days has been turned over to the museum by A. E. "Don" Parker, whose father, Tom Parker, obtained the original mail contract for Metchosin and Rocky Point in 1876.

Parker carried the mail on horseback until the trail was widened in 1908. Then, he went to Dempster's Carriage Works on Blanshard St., and purchased the stage coach for the run. The cost was $200.

The coach served as the only regular means of transportation with the rural areas until 1915, when the automobile came into its own.

The coach made two trips a week—on Tuesdays and Saturdays. It took four hours and the fare was $1.

Two fine horses drew the coach. That was their only job. The carriage had three seats, capable of holding three persons each, but even when all seats were sold room was made for "one more."

A special feature for women passengers was a foot warmer, made of metal and covered with carpeting. Hot coals were put in the metal container on the start of a journey on a cold, winter day.

It Was First-Class Transportation in Grandpa's Day!

CATS' SLAUGHTER PROTESTED

S.P.C.A.'s One-Man Task Force Carries Out Dying Woman's Wish

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Protests against the shooting of 100 semi-wild cats roaming on the Queenswood estate of the late Mrs. F. W. B. Berger, 69, wealthy Victoria woman who died recently, were made to S.P.C.A. Inspector Ben Maggs today.

The inspector was named by Mrs. Berger on her death bed to execute the animals "because no one will feed them when I am gone."

Mrs. Berger, who lived in a palatial home in the residential district of Cadboro Bay, maintained a refuge for stray or abandoned cats.

In answer to the protests, none of which came from the neighborhood involved, the good-natured inspector, who is also a lover of cats, said he would like to know what other way he could get rid of the animals.

"It's the toughest assignment I ever had," he said as he left today with a .12-gauge shotgun to complete a job which he began Thursday.

The inspector shot about 30 cats yesterday. He believes there are about 50 more on the estate.

Maggs said he undertook to do the job for Mrs. Berger because she was a "kindly woman."

"She was not a cat fanatic," he said. "People dumped their unwanted cats on her property. Stray cats followed. Mrs. Berger didn't have the heart to get rid of them."

Maggs said Mrs. Berger was so kind-hearted that when she called him to put a cat to sleep had to do the job in front of her.

"She wanted to make sure it didn't suffer," he said.

COSTLY DIET

Mrs. Sadie Dendoff, nurse-companion to the wealthy woman, estimated that the cats ate about $150 worth of meat a month. They drank 14 quarts of milk daily.

She said the cats were fed in the kitchen all winter twice daily. On Christmas they received a special treat of turkey.

Travel Costs Higher Than Agriculture's

Provincial government officials' traveling expenses will amount an estimated $1,500,000 in the coming year, A. W. Lundell (P.C. Revelstoke) pointed out to the Legislature Thursday.

The Revelstoke member said he had taken the time to go through the 1952-53 budget and total up traveling expenses.

He noted the amount was well in excess of the entire agriculture department budget.

Lundell said a check of the budget item, "automobiles and accessories" would also prove interesting.

"I have often wondered how much traveling time and money would have been saved by the government and the people if the seat of government had remained at New Westminster," said Lundell.

He allied himself with previous speakers who are opposed to a program of retrenchment in B.C.

"Certainly, the people of the Revelstoke district, lagging far behind in the facilities provided by governments, both federal and provincial, would not uphold any policy of economic construction," said Lundell.

Aldermen will continue to smoke in City Council chamber, despite a protest from Mrs. Adelaide Marshall, 1415 Cook.

Her letter was read at City Council meeting Thursday, in which she pointed out two "no smoking" signs were tacked prominently to the chamber walls.

Ald. Robert Macmillan, hastily lighting a fresh cigarette, moved the signs "be removed forthwith." Motion passed and the letter was received and filed amid aldermanic smiles and smoke rings.

WAITRESSES STUMP SPEAKER UNTIL HE SAYS HIS PRAYER

An after-dinner speaker had some difficulty making himself understood after his after-dinner speech to the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel Thursday.

Lt.-Col. Leonard Stranks, of the Salvation Army, spoke to the club members on his 25 years' service in China. He dealt with the poverty of the country and the Chinese people's great love for family and home.

When the meeting ended, Lt.-Col. Stranks was met at the door by two Canadian-Chinese girls, waitresses at the hotel, who requested he "speak some Chinese."

But it didn't come off. Lt.-Col. Stranks speaks the Peking dialect of north China and the Victoria-born girls, Cantonese.

One of them, Florence Mar, found an area of understanding in Col. Stranks' version of the Lord's Prayer. The other, Joan Chan, listened but didn't try to translate.

"She," grinned Miss Mar, "is a Chinese hill-billy."

Town Planners Accused Of 'Railroading' Method

Charges of "railroading" were leveled at Victoria Town Planning Commission in a lengthy brief presented to city council Thursday.

Arthur Burns, lawyer for De Luxe Cleaners, 1100 Pandora, objected to commission treatment of his clients, with regard to a request for rezoning of their Pandora property.

Council referred the brief to the zoning committee.

Applicants sought rezoning or an amendment to the zoning by-law which would permit them to install and operate a modern dry cleaning machine.

Burns said the town planners rejected the application and their report "was shot into council late one night with no one on behalf of the applicant to appear."

Putting the matter to council without notifying the client, Burns said, was "in the nature of a railroading—a procedure which I am certain council would never have countenanced 'had they known the circumstances.'"

"Can this be a further instance

NO WAITING NECESSARY FOR TENANT

The city jail stood empty today for the first time in months.

With the release of four overnight boarders, desk sergeant Wally Andrews marked "jail empty" on a bulletin slip and constables Rod McNeill and Reg Churcheur got a bit of spring cleaning while they had the opportunity.

Churcheur wielded a broom while the drag grey blankets got an airing in the disinfecting room.

HALF OF ISLAND STOLEN FROM U.S. HISTORIAN TELLS CLUB

Britain "stole" half of Vancouver Island from the United States which didn't know about it for 19 years, B. A. McKelvie, B.C. historian, told the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club Thursday night.

McKelvie, who said the U.S. was "done in the eye," was telling about the results of the Treaty of Nootka, 1794, when Britain and Spain agreed to share the island.

When the U.S. bought territorial rights from Spain, Spain's half of Vancouver Island also went to the U.S., but Britain based a claim for the whole island on an earlier treaty with Spain.

McKelvie said the U.S. government did not check Spanish archives, and didn't know for 19 years that British diplomats had "stolen" the island.

JOINT DEFENSE PLANNING

U.S. Experts Here for Conferences

B.C. and Washington State civil defense experts gathered here today to plan towards joint protection in emergency.

From the United States came 30 experts, including one woman, charged with federal and state civil defense organizations.

They met more than 30 of their British Columbia counterparts.

Heading the U.S. delegation is Vice-Admiral D. E. Barbey, director of C.D. in the state of Washington. He is an internationally-recognized expert in the field of amphibious warfare. Retired now, his naval career spanned two wars.

R. A. Pennington, deputy provincial secretary, and chairman of the B.C. civil defense advisory council, is chairman of the conference. He is assisted by Brig. G. A. McCarter, deputy C.D. co-ordinator in the province.

The parley is a continuation of talks to improve mutual assistance plans in the event of an enemy attack in the Pacific northwest. Canadians attended a conference in Olympia, Wash., last December.

"I am glad our two countries are working so closely together to help each other in the event of an emergency," said Premier Byron Johnson in a short welcoming address at the new Douglas Building. "Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith, in charge of civil defense in the province, accompanied the premier."

SEPARATE CONFERENCES

Committees, covering almost every phase of life that would be involved in an emergency situation, broke off early to go into separate all-day conferences.

Chairmen will give 10-minute verbal reports on their discussions and findings Saturday morning. Conference closes at noon.

Visiting delegates include:

U.S. federal civil defense agency personnel: Roger E. Dunham, Paul E. Spaeth, Robert M. Hallberg, Laurence G. Fitzsimmons, Carroll J. Hall, Howard McGowan, Joseph Green, J. P. Boyd, Frederick A. Grasner, Paul Revelle, Ralph L. Garrett and Charles E. Eisenbacher.

Frank Carroll from Alaska.

Washington State representatives: Vice-Admiral Barbey, Rear-Admiral B. G. Lake, James E. Parrott, C. S. Chester, Chief Pryde and Lieut. R. W. Denlow of the state police; Dr. J. B. Spielholz, Jack Mathews, V. P. McNamara, C. E. Fox, C. F. Nash, V. P. Sohn, Walter Brenton, E. W. Conroy, H. R. Bay, E. L. Smith and Mrs. Gwen Hardin.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

One of life's most embarrassing moments:

The phone call that Henry Jarvis had to make to city police today reporting a prowler had stolen $41 from a cigar box in a cupboard at his 1239 Vista Heights home.

Jarvis retired from the city force last year as a detective-sergeant after a long career of solving other people's theft problems.

Three films from the National Film Board will be shown tonight starting at 8 in Room 311 at Bay Street Armoury for reserve personnel.

Memorial Arena commission members will discuss increased seating capacity at the arena during their next meeting March 20.

They are expected to decide then on the number and position of the extra seats.

Resignation of Terence P. O'Grady, assistant city solicitor, was accepted with "much regret" by City Council Thursday.

The young solicitor, who has represented the city in a number of successful cases since his appointment two years ago, will join a local legal firm.

A quantity of medicine was reported missing following the recovery of a doctor's bag in Beacon Hill Park Thursday.

Dr. J. G. Patterson, 745 Yates, told city police he believed the bag was stolen while his car was parked in front of Memorial Arena the night of Mar. 12. Missing was a bottle of novocaine and 75 cc's of general hydro. chloride.

A purse belonging to Mrs. W. T. McCrum, 1750 Oak Bay Avenue, and containing $9 was stolen in a downtown department store Thursday and later recovered empty in the washroom at Veterans Stages depot, police report.

Driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol cost Francis J. Christie, Gray Auto Court, a $200 fine and suspension of his driver's license, in Saanich police court Thursday. He pleaded guilty.

Net income of $30,955 was reported in the audited financial statements of Greater Victoria Water District, received at city hall today.

Total operating revenue from sales of water was $480,634.

The "observation galleries" in the new post office building are not for spying on the public but to maintain routine checks on postal operations. L. S. W. Wells, Dominion Government district architect, made this clear today.

The galleries—or "catwalks"—are so placed that the whole of the post office section of the building can be kept under surveillance through shoulder-high, continuous half-inch slits and glass view-panels in the floor.

Ald. Waldo Skillings arrived home today after attending a civil defense course in Ottawa. He was sent east by the city council.

A woman passenger received deep arm and hand cuts early today in a two-car collision in the 600 block, Johnson Street.

Treated at Jubilee Hospital was Mrs. J. P. Slater, 1268 McKenzie, following a collision between cars driven by Donald Leo Gardner, 246 Simcoe, and James A. Slater, 1268 McKenzie.

Damage to the cars was slight.

Canucks Take Midget Crown

Vancouver Canucks captured the B.C. coast midget hockey championship today, defeating Victoria All-Stars, 11-3, in the final contest of a two-game, total-goal series at Memorial Arena.

Canucks won the first game Thursday night, 7-3.

Norm Usselman was the big gun for the victors, picking up eight points on five goals and three assists. Jack Yanchuk had two goals and one assist.

Other scorers for Vancouver were Sandie, with two, Mayovich and Bates.

Victoria goalkeepers were Walt Harris with two and Peter Dawe.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Produce in Town is From Canada, U.S. and Mexico

By PENNY SAVER

What's new?
That's a very good question!
It could be grandpa's false teeth, Aunt Gert's fur coat, or if I'm to stick to the beaten track I would tell you it is turnips from Prince Edward Island.
I might add too, that it could be the price for cabbage—down to 9 cents a pound.
At this time of year it is hard to list many things that are new in the produce line. We are betwixt and between. It is too late for some things and too early for others.
Asparagus made a grand entry a little while ago and is now selling at 35 pennies a bunch which would make it about 50 cents a pound.
A shipment of Mexican peas reached the counters yesterday. They are priced at 21 cents a pound. They are delicious!

Here and There on the Counter

I noticed in one store that No. 288 oranges were on special at three pounds for 29 pennies. They're from California of course.
Celery from Washington is 12 pennies a pound; Rome beauty apples from Okanagan, two pounds for 21 cents; tomatoes from Mexico, still 27 cents a tube; lemons from California from 19 pennies a pound; grapefruit from Florida, three pounds for 23 cents, both pink and white; and emperor grapes from California, two pounds for 29 pennies.
Here tell there are some coconuts in town, but I don't think they have reached the counters. Should be available any day now though.
One of the few local vegetables at present, is beets. They are very nice—sell for two pounds for 19 cents.
If you are interested, calavos are 19 pennies each.
Bananas are still 20 cents a pound. A shortage of this fruit is expected within the next few weeks due to labor problems in Central America.
That's it for this week. Better hop out and get your week-end shopping done.

Eyelashes Getting Thin; Reader Wants Advice

Q. "What can I do for falling eyelashes? I did have nice thick ones but they are getting thinner and thinner. I use vaseline but it doesn't seem to help. My lids are red."
A. The chances are that either you have a low grade infection on the lids or you need glasses. Investigate these possibilities.
Q. I am 15 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. My bust measures 33 inches; waist, 26 inches; and hips 35 inches. Will you please tell me how much overweight I am?
A. It depends on your bony structure. I would guess you are from four to eight pounds too heavy. If you have large bones you can weigh the same but look slimmer than your small-boned sister.

Q. I am 37 years old and weigh 140 pounds. My bust is 36 inches; waist, 29 inches; and hips, 36 inches. My problem is should I lose more weight. I have lost 18 pounds and everybody is saying that is enough. I am 5 feet 3½ inches tall.
A. I can see how your friends feel because the difference in you must be great. However, don't stop just short of perfection. I think you should lose another eight to ten pounds. Concentrate on waist-reducing exercises.

Q. "I would like to ask you about my shape. I am 19 years old and weigh 143 pounds. I am 5 feet 6 inches tall. My bust measures 35½ inches; waist, 28 inches; and hips, 40 inches. Please tell me in your Friday question box, I will be watching."
A. You are quite a lot overweight. Diet sensibly for a gradual loss of about 15 pounds. Concentrate on hip-reducing exercises.

Q. "I am 33 years old, 5 feet, 1½ inches tall and weigh 102 pounds. My bust measures 33 inches; waist, 25 inches; and hips, 35 inches. Please tell me what is wrong. I seem skinny but I never weighed more than 110 pounds in my life."
A. The average weight for your height and age is about 125 pounds. With your small bones you probably should weigh less than that but you are too thin. You should at least build up to 115 pounds.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Yesterday, as I walked along the street, the warm sweet smell of new bread came to me from a bakery across the road. In a moment, the boulevard trees had disappeared and in their place was an orchard, heavy with red-checked apples.

The pavement under my feet had changed to a well-scrubbed kitchen floor of weathered wood. The warm sweet smell of new bread was still there but now it was coming from an oven in an iron stove in a corner of that kitchen.

A stove that had a reservoir for boiling water hitched to its back, a high warming closet across the top and a big round pipe that elbowed its way up and across the kitchen and out through a round hole to a rough brick chimney in a corner of the room.

In my day dream even I did not look the same. No grey hair, no wrinkles. I was a small girl again. Long black stockings on my legs.

A clean "pinny" over my checked gingham dress and a wide ribbon bow in my hair. It was summer. The windows in that airy kitchen were open to the faint warm breeze. One window looked out over a row of red currant bushes, heavy with fruit (I was supposed to be picking those currants. My bucket, lined with fern leaves stood unheeded at the beginning of the first row).

Another window faced a tiny picket fenced garden where my grandmother grew her flowers—pansies, mignonette, geraniums and rosemary—for remembrance.

The kitchen door stood open and on the low wooden step, a grey cat and three tiny kittens lay asleep in a fluff of soft fur. A brown hen scratched and clucked sleepily in the door yard beyond.

Bread Smells Sweet, Sour at Same Time

My grandmother was making bread in that old-time kitchen and I was leaning against a wooden table, scrubbed almost as white as the flour that dusted it, watching her.

Beside the table was a big wooden trough that all morning had stood beside the iron stove, covered with a white cloth. Now the cloth was laid aside and the bread dough was puffed up to the very edge of the trough, smelling sweet and sour at the same time.

Work had started on that dough the night before when I was sound asleep.

The yeast—made in that same kitchen with mashed potatoes, a liquid made from the hops that climbed the root house at the edge of the orchard, sugar and salt—was tested, the bread mixed and placed in the trough beside the stove to set over night.

In the early morning my grandmother had kneaded down the setting and placed it again beside the stove to rise.

Now the puffy dough was being kneaded and pushed and patted into loaves that were going into the oven, pan after pan.

And it was when the oven was opened that the warm sweet smell reached out to me across the years.

My grandmother had white hair, even then. No doubt many wrinkles. But it is her long fingered hands that I remember so well.

She worked fast and with precision. And I stood entranced as the loaves were shaped and patted into the long pans.

From the end of each loaf a small bit of dough was snipped and placed on the table in front of me. And when the loaves were finished and the last bread pan in the oven, my grandmother with two or three moves of her thumbs and fingers, quickly turned those bits of dough into tiny buns, that were placed in rows in a big flat pan to be baked as soon as the bread was finished.

I was waiting for those buns!

And when they came out of the oven, my grandmother always took the first one, split it, covered it with butter and jam and gave it to me.

In all my life no buns have ever tasted so good. And no buns ever will!

Missionary's Career An Active One

Some women change their positions from one office or centre to another. It's done so often that it's not news.

But when a young woman changes her occupation from a position in the fingerprint department of the B.C. Police, later R.C.M.P., to join the Columbia Coast Mission, it is news.

That is exactly what Miss Doris Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lancaster, McKenzie Avenue, did three months ago.

She has been in the city for the past few days attending the annual meeting of the B.C. diocesan board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada.

Her home is now at Whaletown, Cortez Island, in the straits north of Campbell River.

"It is a very small settlement," Miss Lancaster says. "Only 40 families and one general store, but it is the site where the John Antle Memorial Clinic, a medical missionary centre, was built."

"My work is all very new to me, but so far I have loved every minute of it. I am supervisor of young people's social and Christian activities. But, of course, my activities are not limited to this."

Miss Lancaster spends about a quarter of her time on the mission boat Rendezvous with Rev. R. Boas, skipper, and Mrs. Boas, as they travel some 500 miles of sea coast.

At Refuge Cove, one port of call, Miss Lancaster has to walk

Miss Doris Lancaster travels by boat, crosses log catwalks and follows miles of trails to reach the young people with whom she works.

"On these trips I check the families who are taking Sunday school-by-post, a new phase of our work which developed with the opening of the clinic."

In this method Sunday school courses are sent out to the families and the children can study just as they would any other educational course.

"So far I've been a good sailor," and we have hit some bad storms," she said with a laugh.

"When we stop at the coast settlements I sometimes have to walk four miles from house to house, but the welcome you receive certainly makes it worth the walk," she tells us.

At Refuge Cove, one port of call, Miss Lancaster has to walk logs to reach the floating houses. "You really learn to be a first-class log-walker after a couple of trips," she explains.

When she is in Whaletown, the young missionary lives at the fully modern eight-room missionary centre.

"I'm lucky to live there," she said. "It is the only place with running water in the village and it is the centre of all the activities."

Twice a month moving pictures are shown and regular square and modern dances are organized. There is no electricity on Cortez Island but a small generator runs the projector for the films and enables her to have a radio in her room.

"The mail comes once a week from Vancouver. Again we are fortunate to be on Cortez Island, as some of the other islands are only visited by the mail boat every six months."

She continued, "Of course, we haven't a local newspaper, but we receive them through the mail, if we wish. And there are no telephones, no electricity and no street lights. The houses are lighted by gas lamps."

"In our spare time, Mrs. Boas and I have been clearing the land around the missionary centre, so we can plant a vegetable garden in the spring," the young mission worker tells us.

Miss Lancaster has chosen a very new career. One, that while different from detective work, is far from dull.

She will be returning to Whaletown Saturday morning with Mrs. Boas, who is also attending the annual meeting.

Lake Hill Women's Institute Monday at 2. Guest speaker, Mrs. Richard Spicer; subject, "Laborer." Members may bring guests.

BEDTIME STORY

BEDTIME STORY
by Thornton W. Burgess

Over in a lonesome part of the Green Forest, Sammy Jay had found Bobby Coon climbing a tree in which, high up, was a big old nest. Bobby was climbing up there to take a nap in it. Any way, that is what he said, and it was what he really intended to do. Sammy Jay told him that he was making a mistake, then had flown away. Bobby couldn't see what possible mistake he was making.

Bobby Coon all but tumbled out of that tree. Yes, sir, he all but let go his hold and tumbled out of that tree. You see, when he looked over the edge of that nest, he looked straight into a pair of big round yellow eyes that were the fiercest-looking eyes he had ever seen. At the same time, there was an ugly sounding hiss. Bobby was face to face with Mrs. Hooty the Great Horned Owl, and she wasn't at all a pleasant person to be face to face with high up in a tree-top. All in a flash Bobby knew what Sammy Jay had meant by saying that he was making a mistake.

That ugly hiss was followed by the snapping of a big hooked bill. Mrs. Hooty hissed again and then struck suddenly with that hooked bill. Bobby ducked and dodged. "Excuse me," said he. "I didn't know you lived here. I wouldn't have come up, had I known." All the time he was backing down.

By this time Mrs. Hooty was off her nest, hissing and snapping her bill. Bobby turned so as to go down the tree head first.

Sometimes he goes down a tree head first, and sometimes he backs down a tree as a cat does. This time he was going down head first, which is the way Happy Jack Squirrel goes down. But Bobby couldn't run down fast the way Happy Jack can, and now Mrs. Hooty had taken to her wings and was swooping at him, striking with her great curved claws and trying to knock him off that tree. Hooty joined her. He had a sore foot, but that didn't prevent him from striking with the other foot, and beating at Bobby Coon with his wings.

Bobby growled and snarled. He snapped at his tormentors, but the best that his sharp teeth could do was to get him a mouthful of feathers. At last he was low enough to let go and drop. You should have seen him take to his black heels as soon as he hit the ground.

Small Operators Back Celgar Plan
Eighteen small logging operators in the Arrow Lakes district have urged the government to approve Celgar Development Company's application for a forest management license in the Castlegar area.

The delegation has been in Victoria this week discussing the situation, and Wednesday passed a resolution unanimously endorsing the plan.

The $65,000,000 development is expected to advance greatly the industrial economy of the entire region.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

With TOMMIE WALTERS

Far out in our Northwest Territories, radio station CFYK at Yellowknife, has just celebrated its second birthday. The citizens of this remote region of Canada are justly proud of their station which identifies itself on the air as "The Voice of the Golden North" for it is in every sense of the word a community venture, providing as it does much of the area's entertainment. The 250-watt transmitter was provided and installed by the Canadian Army's Signal Corps.

The station operates as a sort of perpetual amateur hour, with its voluntary announcers in Radio time and programs are furnished by stations and networks and are subject to last minute changes. The Times assumes no responsibility for inaccurate listings.

cluding teachers and housewives, miners and clergymen, geologists and government workers, and the occasional teen-ager enthusiast. A radio committee of citizens runs the station under rules and regulations laid down by the CBC. Broadcasting stretches over 17 hours daily with a wide variety of programs.
Highlight of the last year's operation was the station's broadcast of proceedings of the Northwest Territories Council when it met for the first time as a representative parliamentary body.

Listeners in the region also hear local hockey games and religious programs, forums and individual talks, musical selections, newscasts and children's programs. A prospectors' forum was a recent feature. Sgt. Maj. Neil MacLeod of the C.A.S.C. has been chosen technical adviser for the coming year.

Howe, Green Clash on Steel

B.C. Member Chides Production Minister On Iron Ore Exports, Demanding Steel Plant

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver Quadra) sparked a brief heated exchange Thursday in the Commons when he charged that Production Minister Howe favored sending Alberta oil and gas to the United States rather than to British Columbia.

"That is a deliberate misstatement," said Mr. Howe angrily.

Mr. Green said he had been in the Commons when Mr. Howe had urged that exports of Alberta oil and gas to the United States be permitted before British Columbia's needs were filled.

Delegation Protests New Penal Plan

The B.C. Probation and Corrections Association asked the government Thursday to rescind immediately a recent directive requiring automatic transfer to Okauch Prison for two-time escapees from the Boys' Industrial School at Coquitlam.

Appearing before Health and Welfare Minister A. D. Turnbull, the delegation realized the Juvenile Delinquents Act provides for transfer of escapees to senior jails.

But objection was voiced against the automatic transfer provision.

"We consider automatic transfer a regressive step which ignores the basic problem, a delegate said.

The association representatives feel "very grave consideration" should be exercised prior to transferring any juvenile to an adult prison.

"By doing this, the delinquent is virtually being handled as an adult criminal, thereby contravening the spirit and philosophy of the Juvenile Delinquents Act," the group contended.

Modern penological thinking stresses the uncovering of causal factors in the commission of offences rather than imposing automatic punitive measures.

The delegation recommended establishment of "security quarters" in the Boys' Industrial School to deal with exceptionally disturbed boys.

All deposits will be returned to the tenderers.

Commission member H. W. Davey, K.C., said today certain improvements are planned which are expected to relieve the congestion at concession booths. He added that more modern equipment will also be installed to expedite food handling.

Faster Concession Service Promised At Memorial Arena

Memorial Arena will continue to handle its concession concessions with improvements planned by the commission to speed up the handling and distribution of food.

This followed the rejection of bids Wednesday night by commissioners because none "guaranteed more than present profits experienced by our management."

Commission member H. W. Davey, K.C., said today certain improvements are planned which are expected to relieve the congestion at concession booths. He added that more modern equipment will also be installed to expedite food handling.

Director Reports Fine Cure Record By Crease Clinic

The Crease Clinic at Essondale was able to discharge 87.9 per cent of the 964 patients it treated in 1951. The Legislature's social welfare and education committee heard Thursday.

The clinic's work and other services given at Essondale were described by Dr. A. M. Gee, director of mental health services at the huge Coquitlam mental hospital.

He then showed the members a National Film Board moving picture, "Breakdown," made at the clinic and portraying the course of a mental breakdown and treatment given an individual.

Fair Exhibit Space Already Nearly Filled

Bigger than ever before will be the B.C. Products Fair this year. This is confidently predicted by Junior Chamber of Commerce officials, whose organization sponsors the event, May 5-10.

Quality will not be sacrificed, they say. At the regular fortnightly meeting of the Jaycees in the Sirocco Club Wednesday night, it was revealed that nearly all exhibit space at the Armories for the big annual display of B.C. industrial and agricultural products has been taken up.

Following the business session, members heard an address by City Comptroller Henry Watson who spoke on municipal finance. This was the second in a series of lectures on civic government organized by Victoria Jaycees.

Watson sketched the pattern of financial control in the city's government. He told how the budget is set up, how taxes are collected and debts repaid.

Spring's Backdrop Ready to Bloom

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

The flowering plum trees, now starting to bloom on city boulevards, have been called Japanese since the day they first appeared here.

But there is nothing Japanese about them, according to Parks Administrator W. H. Warren.

With a few days' sunshine they should be putting on their annual beauty show along Victoria boulevards—probably within 10 days' time.

Warren figures now is as good a time as any to down both the name and the legend. "The tree was discovered by a Frenchman named Pissard who was gardener to the Shah of Persia back in 1881," said Warren. "It has no connection with the Japanese."

As Japan was the source of many flowering trees, people along the Pacific coast for years labelled any such species "Japanese," according to the administrator.

The trees are known as "purple leaf flowering plums," he said.

First blooms have already appeared and soon they will be making the boulevards look like a Hollywood backdrop for "Maytime."

Warren expects a good showing both in parks and on boulevards this year since there has been no serious frost to injure blossoms.

"Things are shaping up for a first-rate spring show," he said.

Cannery Workers Seek Wage Boost

VANCOUVER, March 14 (CP)

Workers in fish canneries and related plants opened a drive Thursday for a 33 1/2 per cent wage increase.

About 7,000 employees of 17 companies are represented by a committee of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

More Protection for More People

Report to Metropolitan Policyholders for 1951

The importance of Life insurance and its relationship to the lives of the people of the United States and Canada cannot effectively be portrayed by figures in a balance sheet. Cold figures can never adequately show human needs and their fulfillment. It is important, therefore, to try to interpret these figures in terms of the millions of people they represent and the millions who benefit by the use of the services rendered by the Company and its Agents. The Metropolitan was serving 33,373,000 Life insurance policyholders at the close of the year.

The personal phases of Life insurance—for it is a highly personal business—are highlighted daily by dramatic instances. Sometimes they are so unusual as to give special emphasis to the part our business plays in the life of the United States and Canada. The following quotation from a letter from the son of a deceased policyholder, requesting the return of a policy on which claim had been paid, tells with simple sincerity a moving story of a Life insurance policy, of the son's relationship with his father, and of a sound process of economic and social education:

"This policy... has for me possibly a greater sentimental value than it would have cash value... For you to understand this, you would have to know the years of close relationship and confidence that existed between my father and me. When I was a small boy, he would take me with him to his safety deposit vault... Always he stressed to me the importance of his insurance policy, how this piece of paper would some day have a cash value that might tide the family over in an emergency... Time has passed... but the sentimental worth of this piece of paper is constant in my thinking... I have always been told that business, especially Big Business, is hard and cold and rigid, but I know that this is not so, because business is made up of people. People with hearts and souls and loved ones, and people who have lost loved ones, and some who possibly think and feel the same way that I do."

We were, of course, pleased to grant this unusual request.

The record sum of $924,000,000 was paid in benefits to policyholders and beneficiaries during 1951. This included payments of $141,000,000 on more than 1,250,000 claims (five times ten years ago) for Accident and Health and Disability benefits. A new high was also reached in Life insurance in force—$48,512,000,000, a gain of more than $3,000,000,000 over 1950.

More people than ever were protected last year by Metropolitan Accident and Health insurance. As the year closed, the Company had in force 3,270,000 policies or certificates providing weekly indemnity for disability of $86,000,000 per week. Hospital, Surgical or Medical Expense benefits were provided by 2,744,000 policies or certificates.

Another significant development during the year was the introduction of Extended Medical Coverage through Group insurance to protect people against abnormal hospital, surgical, and medical expense that might exhaust a family's entire savings.

These high lights of the Company's business in Canada during 1951, our 79th year in this country, will be of particular interest to Metropolitan's Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries.

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries

Metropolitan paid in 1951 to its Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries $47,042,393 in death claims—matured policies—accident and health and disability benefits—dividends and other payments. Of this amount, 70% was paid to living policyholders.

The total amount the Metropolitan has paid to Canadians since it entered Canada in 1872, plus the amount now invested in Canada, exceeds the total premiums received from Canadians by more than $424,000,000.

Life Insurance in Force

In 1951, Canadians bought $233,659,426 of new Life insurance protection in the Metropolitan, and at the year's end the Company was serving 2,500,000 Life insurance policyholders in Canada insured for $2,658,301,557. Of this amount, 56% was Ordinary business, 28% was Industrial and 16% was Group.

Total Investments in Canada

Metropolitan investments in Canada amounted to $632,999,420 at the end of 1951. These investments are playing an important part in the economy of Canada with substantial totals of Federal, Provincial, and Municipal bonds and with sizeable totals in the obligations of steel and paper companies, the oil industry, railroads, electric light and power companies, and others.

Health and Welfare Work

Since 1909 Metropolitan has conducted a continuous health education campaign in Canada and during 1951 participated in numerous activities. More than 2,100,000 pamphlets on a variety of health and safety topics were distributed—monthly health advertisements appeared in national publications—"Good Hints for Good Health" was a daily feature on many radio stations.

Pearson Denies Military Dominates N.A.T.O. Body

Feud Between External Affairs Minister And C.C.F. Party Occupies House Affairs

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—A vigorous, developing feud between External Affairs Minister Pearson and the C.C.F. Party moved through another instalment in the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Pearson stepped into the Throne Speech debate to deny C.C.F. assertions that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which he is chairman, is dominated by the military and is embarking on a defense program which will wreck the economies of Western Europe.

His speech, with its complex background, took the spotlight from other addresses in the debate.

It was another chapter in a battle that harks back to a C.C.F. council statement issued nearly two weeks ago which described military goals adopted at the recent N.A.T.O. meeting in Lisbon as "irresponsible" and "disastrous"—irresponsible because they were impossible to achieve and disastrous because they could break the economies of free Europe.

This sequence of events developed from that statement:

Tuesday night, Mr. Pearson criticized the C.C.F. statement in a political broadcast, carried over the CBC, accusing the C.C.F. of giving comfort to Russia by "irresponsibly" advocating a cut-back in the rearmament targets.

It was "sad," the minister said in the broadcast, to see that the C.C.F. seemed to be moving towards the Communist view that the Atlantic alliance is an aggressive coalition.

Wednesday, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, rose in the Commons to say that he "deeply resented Mr. Pearson's 'deliberate smears' and 'slanders' against him and his party. As a life-long opponent to the Red doctrine, he did not need to 'defend myself against the charge of communism.'"

But it has become apparent, he said, "on this continent that constructive criticism demanded by the military leaders of N.A.T.O. is invariably criticized as Communist propaganda."

Even The Times of London and other responsible British journals had voiced editorial criticism of the N.A.T.O. program.

CHALLENGES STATEMENT

Then, pointing to a N.A.T.O. statement that Europe's defense power is being "increased," he challenged Mr. Pearson's statement that the N.A.T.O. goal—50 divisions in being by the end of this year and 90 to 100 by the end of 1953—represents a decrease, not an increase.

Thursday, Mr. Pearson replied. He denied that the military dominates N.A.T.O. and said that Canada would not be among the 14-country membership, if that was so.

He denied, too, that he had accused either Mr. Coldwell or the C.C.F. of being Communist or was attempting to prevent anyone from expressing an honest opinion. That assertion merely "throws a smoke screen around the real issue."

The "real danger," he suggested, is that the C.C.F. statement will play into the hands of Communist propaganda.

N.A.T.O. had known all along that a stage would come in its defense build-up when the danger from the Soviet "might appear to be slackening," when there would be a "very real temptation to let down our efforts." That temptation now might be "difficult to resist" in this country as a result of the C.C.F. statement.

As for the C.C.F.'s assertion that the N.A.T.O. targets are impossible, the governments represented at Lisbon did not agree that they were incapable of being reached, though they admitted it might be difficult to reach them and felt every effort should be made.

DEFENSES ACCURACY

Mr. Pearson defended the accuracy of his statement that the targets were a decrease. They were down from the goals of last year, but he could not name the 1951 totals because they were still secret.

The military forces were being increased "but that is something very different from increasing our program."

Mr. Pearson warned that, though international tension was eased, N.A.T.O. will face "difficult" days ahead. If the defensive effort was slackened, "then indeed we will have something to worry about and this whole inspiring concept of a coalition for peace may come tumbling to the ground."

"If that happens, then very shortly we certainly will have again the atmosphere of crisis and fear, almost of agony, from which I think we are slowly but steadily emerging."

The last word came from Allister Stewart (C.C.F., Winnipeg North), who followed Mr. Pearson.

He suggested the western nations could not defend themselves by "smashing" the economies of Europe. The most important help that could be given to Europe was economic aid.

He said the C.C.F. was not withdrawing support of N.A.T.O., but did not want to see the alliance imperilled by policies which it believed to be wrong. It did not think western Europe could support a defense program of the size contemplated.

A dozen speakers took part in the debate, which roamed over immigration, natural resources, redistribution of parliamentary seats and other topics.

TO RENOVATE HALL

The South Saanich Institute Hall will be renovated this year by the Farmers' and Women's Institute of South Saanich. It was learned today from Mrs. H. H. McNally, secretary.

TASTY COURSE

Kitchen-Born French Art College Offer

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A course in French cooking is being offered by the Victoria College evening division to any women interested in the higher culinary.

For the sum of $8 only, R. T. Wallace, director of the evening division, said women may learn some of the inner secrets of French cooking from Mrs. Mabel Anderson, wife of the head of the French department at the University of British Columbia.

The course is scheduled for the evenings of March 31, April 14 inclusive between 7.30 and 9.30.

Prof. Wallace did not elaborate on the cooking secrets but appeared genuinely enthusiastic about "la cuisine Française." In fact his enthusiasm for French cooking was so great that he nearly got this reporter to sign up for the course.

"The aim of the course is 'joie de vivre,' he said with a wave of his hand. "More people should learn the art of 'joie de vivre.'"

The professor said if a woman or man wants to be a successful cook they must have "l'audace, encore de l'audace, et toujours de l'audace!"

The professor smirked his lips: "L'ons-ago, the French achieved recognition as the best, most adventuresome cooks the world over," he said.

"But alas," he sighed, "our women are not French cooks."

What our women need is boldness, l'audace to you, he said, saying the newspaperman was impressed. "Do you know anything about cooking?" he asked. The professor looked non-plussed.

"Pauvre de moi," he replied. "I'm a mathematician."

Hoof-and-Mouth Virus Proves Hard to Detect

REGINA, March 14 (CP)—One of the most meticulous detective jobs in Canadian history is under way as officials struggle to make sure that an outbreak of hoof-and-mouth disease among cattle is held in check.

The criminal is a microscopic virus, tiny but tough enough to deal a crippling blow at Canada's $2,000,000,000 livestock industry.

The federal government has a squad of 43 veterinarians in the Regina district now, 34 of them flown in from other parts of Canada, mostly Ontario and Quebec.

Ten more are expected. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are in the middle of the fight.

With the outbreak apparently in check now, the job of the animal doctors and police is to see that it doesn't spread beyond the fences of the 30 infected farms in the quarantined area around Regina.

It's a tough job, because the hardy little virus can be transmitted by almost any means.

To guard against this transmission, persons entering and leaving quarantine areas—and their vehicles—have to be decontaminated. Raincoats and rubber boots are worn in, and they are sprayed with a lye solution on leaving. Cars are sprayed, too, at a special decontamination station.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer introduced a bill in the Legislature Wednesday night which will amend the Vancouver City Charter along these lines.

Votes for spouses of property owners and tenants were authorized by the Legislature last year, but according to Vancouver city council, insufficient time was available to prepare the list.

This is the only change in the charter planned for this session.

BEDSIDE SERVICE

Joint recommendations urging re-establishment of bedside nursing services in Saanich have been sent to the municipal council by the Saanich Welfare Department and the Lake Hill Women's Institute. It was learned today from M. R. Rogers, Saanich social welfare administrator.

Rogers said in his opinion the service which was suspended in 1946 should be resumed. He added that recipients should be charged for the service.

The next Vancouver civic election will allow another 40,000 voters, mostly women, to cast their ballots.

The professor smirked his lips: "L'ons-ago, the French achieved recognition as the best, most adventuresome cooks the world over," he said.

"But alas," he sighed, "our women are not French cooks."

STRANGE MALADY STRIKES CANADIAN ARMY IN KOREA

Inter-High School Hoop Tourney Away

Nanaimo's Buzz Jacklin (7) was an outstanding player in the opening game of the second annual inter-high school basketball tournament at Victoria High School today though his team bowed to Mount View, 44-40. Demonstrating his defensive technique Jacklin blocks the shot of Mount View's Dick Grainger (11) on this play. Other players are Pete Winter (9), Mount View; Ken Murray (77), Mount View; Dave Price (55), Mount View. The tournament continues tonight and Saturday.

U.S. Refutes Malik Charge

U.N. Delegate Cohen Denies Use Of Germ Weapons in Korea Warfare

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 14 (AP)—Soviet delegate Jakob Malik today accused the United States of using bacteriological weapons in Korea and China and called on the U.N. disarmament commission to consider immediately measures to prevent future use of germ warfare.

Benjamin V. Cohen, United States delegate, immediately called the charges "unwarranted and unsubstantiated."

ASKS IMPARTIAL PROBE

Cohen said the United States has asked the International Red Cross to investigate these charges and urged Malik to use his influence to see that an impartial investigation is made.

Malik made his charges at the first meeting of the new U.N. disarmament commission here and split sharply from a plan of work proposed by Cohen.

"The whole world is indignant at the United States use of bacteriological warfare in Korea and China," Malik said near the end of the commission meeting.

"The disarmament commission should immediately consider the prohibition of this sort of warfare and measures to prevent its future use."

Malik's charges on bacteriological warfare followed by several days charges from Communist Chinese and North Korean sources that the United States is using germ warfare in Korea.

Malik said the commission should immediately consider the prohibition of this sort of warfare and measures to prevent its future use.

Malik's charges on bacteriological warfare followed by several days charges from Communist Chinese and North Korean sources that the United States is using germ warfare in Korea.

ARMS REDUCTION

Malik also called on the commission to suggest immediately a substantial reduction in the armed forces of the big powers and a ban on atomic weapons.

The United States and Russia split sharply on how to tackle the commission's assignment of making disarmament plans.

Cohen submitted a plan of work for arms control by stages, Malik demanded immediate decisions.

The Soviet delegate said the United States, Britain and France and their allies, "including Yugoslavia and Spain," have far more armed forces at hand than the Soviet Union.

The commission decided to meet again next Wednesday.

CANADIAN DELEGATE

Canada is represented by her permanent representative to the U.N., David Johnson, former high commissioner to Pakistan.

Canada is a permanent member of the commission, along with the five big powers, because of her contributions to the development of atomic energy.

Putting up a five-point plan of work, Cohen told the commission that "there is room for all constructive ideas... the people of the world are not interested in propaganda tricks or politics. They expect from us a workable plan for a new house of peace and security."

Cohen said the commission must make its first report to the U.N. by June 1. He suggested the delegates concentrate on the first step in the plan, providing for a world census of armaments and armed forces. The Russians have turned down such an idea.

Nanaimo Beaten 44 to 40

A hard-fighting Mount View High School crew opened the Vancouver Island inter-high basketball tournament here today with a last-minute 44-40 victory over Nanaimo's John Shaw High School.

The win was a big one for the Victoria squad, seen as a dark-horse entry in the eight-team tournament which will decide the Island championship and send a winner against the best on the mainland for the B.C. title.

Up 26-21 at the half, Mount View watched their edge slip away as John Shaw fought back to tie it up 32-32 going into the final quarter.

In the stretch drive it was the eagle eye of Alan Snowsall, son of Mount View teacher and basketball coach, Franch Snowsall, which paid off. Snowsall racked up 18 points in the game and was ably backed by teammate Ken Murray, who notched 13.

Top scoring honors, however, went to former Victorian Buzz Jacklin, who accounted for 25 of Nanaimo's 40 points.

Two Soldiers Reported Dead After Infection

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—A strange disease peculiar to the Far East has affected 18 soldiers of Canada's 25th Brigade in Korea and two have died, army headquarters said today.

Eleven of the cases have been repatriated to Canada and are undergoing treatment in veterans' hospitals. Five others are in hospital in Korea. One case is classified as serious.

The disease, which first broke out among American troops in Korea last year, is known medically as epidemic hemorrhagic fever. It was first reported by the Japanese during their campaign in Manchuria in the late 1930's.

The disease causes bleeding under the skin and internally and sometimes causes a kidney blockage.

Doctors know little about the disease, but believe it is a virus infection, possibly carried by a small rodent peculiar to the Far East.

Headquarters did not name the soldiers who died of the disease, nor give their units.

An army spokesman said that their deaths have been reported privately to the next-of-kin and the soldiers would not be included in battle casualty lists from Korea, but would be classified as dying from natural causes.

First cases among the Canadian troops were reported last fall. The last case occurred in January.

Medical authorities report that penicillin and other antibiotics have had little effect in treatment carried out so far.

FINAL BULLETINS

Racing Canceled at Golden Gate

ALBANY, Calif., March 14—Today's race card at Golden Gate Field was canceled after the second race owing to a heavy downpour of rain. Jockeys refused to accept any further mounts.

Claims World Mark With 34-lb. Trout

COUER D'ALENE, Idaho, March 14 (AP)—A fisherman caught a 34-pound Dolly Varden trout in Lake Pend Oreille Thursday and claimed a world's record for the species.

The fish was landed by Elmer Dreishach of Bayview. This tops a 32-pound Dolly landed in 1949 by Nelson Higgins of Pullman, Wash. The Higgins catch was regarded as a record for Dolly Varden.

Defense Spending $900,000,000

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—Production Minister Howe told the Commons today that the Canadian government has spent $900,000,000 for defense production during the current fiscal year—$200,000,000 short of the $1,100,000,000 allocated for such expenditures.

Acheson Denounces Moscow Meet

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP)—State Secretary Acheson today denounced a forthcoming international economic conference in Moscow as a fake set-up "to confuse and weaken" the West.

He issued a statement saying the meeting "is a Soviet creation" designed to "lure unsuspecting men of good reputation to participate in the Moscow proceedings in order to mislead their names and their public standing." About 25 of the Americans invited to attend have rejected invitations.

WRONG BOWMAN QUOTED

Minister Still Hopeful Meat Embargo May Ease

When was Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman not Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman?

"Thursday" night, that's for sure," replies British Columbia's hard-working agriculture minister, emphatically.

Confusion reigned in B.C.'s newspapers and radio stations when a report circulated that Bowman had announced the province's meat embargo would definitely not be lifted this week. This appeared to be contradicting what Bowman told the Legislature earlier this week. So nearly everybody in the news-gathering business started to check the story.

The report had said that Bowman was on his way to Regina to look over the situation, but some smart newspapermen decided to make sure by checking Bowman's Victoria home. Surprisingly, Bowman answered the phone.

"Me, on my way to Regina? Well hardly! I think I'm right here in Victoria," replied the minister. "No, I didn't tell anybody the ban definitely would not be lifted this week. There is a chance it will be."

TANGLE SOLVED

To make a long and confused story shorter, the press and radio did some hard back-checking and came up with the answer.

The contradictory statements came from another Harry Bowman, a cattleman from Regina, who was registered in a Vancouver hotel.

The facts aren't clear, but apparently a Vancouver reporter noticed a Harry Bowman registered at the hotel, phoned him and started asking questions. Regina's Bowman, being a cattleman, must have thought it was an interview and answered all the questions.

One Vancouver newspaper carried an eight-column headline on the story, and a picture of the minister with the caption, "Leaves Town."

This morning, Minister Bowman said:

"I insist I'm in Victoria. I should know where I am."

To make matters worse, Bowman was at home ill while the confusion reigned, and his phone rang continuously as the press tried to straighten out the tangle.

The real story about the meat embargo situation? Bowman said it is unchanged. He is waiting to hear from Ottawa on arrangements being made for inspection services. He may hear tonight, he said, and there is a chance the embargo may be eased this week-end. Meanwhile, Dr. Wallace Gown, livestock commissioner, has gone to Edmonton to study the situation there.

CHECK ON B.C.-ALBERTA BORDER FOR LIVESTOCK

CROWS NEST, B.C., March 14 (CP)—Cars crossing the Alberta-British Columbia border are being stopped by a three-man British Columbia patrol at the Corbin Road cutoff, six miles east of Michel, B.C. The patrol is maintained around the clock.

It was set up as a result of the interprovincial ban on shipments of livestock and fresh meat following the Regina outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

Cars bound for B.C. are examined for meat. Whenever it is found they are ordered to return to Alberta. Cooked or canned meats may be taken in, but no hams or bacon.

SHARP EARTHQUAKE ROUSES VICTORIA

Early Morning Tremor, Worst of Year, Causes Little Damage in City

A sudden, sharp earthquake, most severe of the year, shook the city and district at 7 a.m. today and drove countless Victorians from their beds.

The "natural alarm clock" occurred just 24 seconds before 7 o'clock, according to the Dominion Astro-Physical Observatory seismologist.

Its epicentre was about 20 miles from the observatory and due east of Sidney, in the U.S.-Canadian border waters of Georgia Straits.

Apparently no damage was done and intensity was 4, below the level at which destruction occurs, but a certain amount of mental anguish was reported from sleep-fogged citizens.

Here are some of the reactions: City Centre: "It woke me up by shaking my bed, and it took me a few seconds to realize what had happened. When there were no more shocks I went back to sleep."

Fairfield: "When a gooseneck lamp on my dresser started to wriggle I was a little worried, and actually relieved when I heard a rumble and knew it was an earthquake."

Esquimalt: "My bed shook and the alarm clock rang all at once. It's the first quake I've ever felt, and I was too surprised to be frightened."

View Royal: "It sounded like a freight train going by my front door."

Oak Bay: "When all the furniture in my kitchen leaped around I was sure my old house was falling down."

Mount Douglas: "The power lines outside my house danced a jig."

James Bay: "The whole house shuddered, and so did I!"

Cordova Bay: "My little daughter had eyes like saucers."

A series of tremors, of about the same intensity, shook the city on February 20, 21, and 22. All originated in the same place as the one today, and were only slightly less intense.

Observatory officials estimated the intensity of today's jolt as higher than those in February because it was felt over a much wider area. Those previously were felt only within a 30-mile radius of the centre.
